1. Introduction and summary

A number of German late medieval armorials belong to the Bodensee group, named after the region of manufacture of the early members. Strictly speaking, they do not make up a series of copies, but they share a number of features. All include many marker coats-of-arms, i.e. combinations of legends and figures-of-arms unlikely to have been invented independently. Some markers are curious mistakes of actual arms, but most belong to the imaginary arms attributed to non-Christian realms or to names from literature. Most of the armorials in the group have segments of ternionen (three best of each, notably the Nine Worthies), quaternionen (the Pillars of the Empire), and/or organize parts of the German nobility by their membership of tournament societies. Woodblocks were used for prestamping the outlines of shields, helmets and manteling, and several woodblocks were reused for different armorials. It is likely that some of the sources used were older collations owned by or readily accessible to the artisans responsible. Except for short fragments copying was rarely used, but pick-and-mix would be the favoured approach, though by which guiding principles still need to be clarified.

These armorials were probably part of a fashion trend in which wealthy burghers and local nobility acquired not only holy books and literature but also commissioned collections of coats-of-arms either as such or appended to chronicles. The manufacture of these manuscripts was probably done commercially in a few artisan workshops by professional illustrators or painters. Within a short time such manuscript books would be replaced by printed works. The most notable work, and perhaps the first, was the chronicle of the Church Council held in Constance (Konstanz) on the Bodensee during 1414-1418 written by Ulrich von Richental (KCR). This combination of a chronicle and an armorial was probably finished around 1430, but most manuscript copies (with or without arms and miniatures) were made between 1460 and 1480 followed by a first printing in 1483 – and several reprints, copies in part and extractions for several hundred years.

The present armorial, named for the stated author Jörg Rugen al. Georg Rüxner (c.1460-c.1526), belongs to this group. It is a comparatively late member, its various parts were probably written, drawn and painted 1493-1499. It has two main parts: an armorial (of Germans only and imaginary arms) and a genealogical chronicle. Most sheets were prestamped with woodblocks, not previously encountered. The paper used for the chronicle came from a single source, whereas the paper used for the chronicle had several sources according to the watermarks. The text, except for some later additions, is in the autograph of Jörg Rugen, a professional herald.
and author of genealogical works. Whether the author was also responsible for the artwork is an open question. The artistic quality is excellent, especially for the crests, and except for the arms of pope Alexander VI of uniform execution. Colour coding was tricked in letters on most shields and/or crests. Several sources must have been used. The armorial has an unusually high frequency of repeats among the german nobles, indicating the consecutive use of different sources without regard for items previously entered. Several items in this armorial are similar in details or unique (among the armorials reviewed) to entries in the Berliner Wappenbuch or its sources. In my opinion the plurality of sources and the degree of artistic competence shown are evidence of a close cooperation between the author and a professional painter's or illustrator's workshop.

The armorial has been partitioned into 43 segments based on content, layout and page headers. The first segment is an introduction naming the author and his two helpers or sponsors: Ortolf Trenweg von Trennbach and Oswald Messenbeck zu Schwendt, nobles from the Salzburg-Passau region. One segment (no. 42) is the chronicle of the rulers of Bavaria from time immemorial illustrated with coats-of-arms attributed to fictitious ancestors as well as past members of the house of Wittelsbach. The lineage given from 1180 on is similar to the present opinion, indicating access to family sources. This chronicle might have been written later than the armorial, but the artwork appears to be by the same artisan. Two segments (nos. 31, 43) were assigned simply to separate some later additions. Another two segments (nos. 28-29) give an unusual series of displays of ancestors (four quarters) that might be related to the families of the two sponsors.

The first 25 leaves of the armorial proper are in disorder, but contain the usual introductory series of imaginary arms found in the Bodensee group of armorials. Arms of the pope, emperor, electors, kings of Europe and the world, ternionen and quaternionen make nine segments, followed by a segment of dioceses, mostly with arms of contemporary office holders quartering their personal arms with those of the dioceses. With few exceptions, any layout forms a subgroup. A very characteristic layout with a central achievement and a number of shields in orle was used for displays of the dominions of 46 princes in segment 12. A subgroup of eight segments of german nobles grouped by region follows – all in the same layout. The next subgroup in a different layout gives another seven segments of german nobles. Segment 30, following the two 'ancestral' segments, presents a semi-organized selection of german nobles, but with many repeats from previous segments as well as intra-segment repeats. The last subgroup includes a list of the hereditary possessions of the house of Habsburg, a list of grand masters of the Teutonic Order, a list of German towns and markets and as a unique exercise in the creation of arms the quartered arms of 180 dukes subject to the 'greek' emperor and 48 single shields for the barons too.

2. Manuscript, date and author

The manuscript of this armorial is preserved in Innsbruck, Universitäts- und Landesbibliothek Tirol (ULBT) as Cod. 545 Jörg Rugen: Wappenbuch. It is also known as the Innsbrucher Wappenbuch.\(^1\) In the present edition it contains 3619 numbered items, mainly achievements with shield and crest. Many of the combinations of coat-of-arms and legends are very special and identical to items found among members of the Bodensee Group of armorials (App.C). It has been assigned the sigla RUG in Clemmensen OM. When and how it came to the library is not known.

2.1 Codicology

The manuscript was briefly described by Hermann in 1905 and more recently by Mairhofer & al. in 2009 with a four-page web-version on [www.manuscripta.at].\(^2\) They included a list of books and articles mentioning the RUG, of which the more important are included in the present bibliography. In addition, Mairhofer & al. / ULB Tirol provided transcriptions page by page of the explanatory headers and a proposal for the reconstruction of the original sequence. The language is German.

The manuscript contains coats-of-arms drawn in ink and painted in watercolour on prestamped paper, 320 x 215 mm, 317 + 2 leaves. It is bound in a 19\(^{th}\) century cardboard binding with leaves in variably sized quires, typically of 4-6 bifolios. It was not possible to examine the quires in detail, but in a few instances it was observed that a quire might include more than one type of layout. Only a few quires are stitched individually, but all are stitched together in such a way that the inside items and legends are partially obscured. Topsides and bottom edges appear to have been slightly cut during binding. The leaves ff.1-17 [1-206] appear to have been mixed with later inserts. A possible sequence was proposed in ULB Tirol, as reviewed in subchapter 2.2, with some 'missing' page being inserted (fo.303-305, 307).\(^3\) Half of the bifolio containing fo.23 appears to have been cut out, and there are fo.97 and fo.97-\(\)bis. Noted single leaves are fo.2, 3, 188, 293 and 294. The pages

\(^1\) Not to be confused with another Innsbrucker WB (IBK, 480 items), former ms.50, owned c.1930 by the Tiroler-Adels-Matrikel-Genossenschaft, BGH #64.

\(^2\) The entry in http://manuscripta.at/_scripts/php/msDescription2.php?ID=9398 will give both the codicological description by the ULB Tirol and a selection of images of pages and watermarks. It can be assessed from the home page giving the manuscript number. The description is unsigned, but assumed to be by Mairhofer & al., cited here as ULB Tirol – and, with own observations, the basis for this subchapter.

\(^3\) The inserted leaves are numbered here as 16a/304, 16b/303, 16c/305, 16d/307 with items [151-198].
1v, 2rv, 3rv, 16r, 188v and 315v are blank, and 260v-262r and 263r-264v pre-stamped with RUG-H woodblocks (layout U), but never used for arms.

Several leaves contain watermarks dated 1495-1500 (list and images in ULB Tirol). Four different watermarks were pictured in ULB Tirol. The (apparently) major forms are a hand-weight-cum-circle (fo.73, 225, 263), a bull’s head-cum-cross & serpent (fo.273, 279), and a crown-like figure (fo.308). The ‘bull’s head’ is also on a single leaf later inserted as fo.2. The fourth is a letter-P-cum-shield-of-arms (fo.314).

The main writing is in a cursiva ultimo 15th century, actually the autograph of the herald Jörg Rugen al. Georg Rüxner (see subchapter 2.3), with later entries in a late 16th century hand. Contemporary foliation in arabic numerals on top right corner supplemented by a 19th century foliation (e.g. 1r, 21r), and on some leaves also a foliation in roman numerals.

All pages used and the non-used pages (excl. those noted above and pure text pages, 265r-266v, but incl. later additions) were pre-stamped as indicated in App.A and B. The imprints of the six woodblocks used are numbered RUG-A through RUG-H (F and G omitted). The woodblock would have been applied for making a row, usually with only one type of woodblock per page, giving 9 different layouts lettered as in App. B. Most layouts were used consecutively (App. A).

Many of the arms are slightly different from what is usually observed, exchanging Argent with Or or black, which together with the many misspellings and confounded legends suggests that at least some of the sources used were old and in bad shape at the time of copying. This manuscript was probably made in a workshop for use in a study, and not carried around for note-taking.

2.2 Structure

A cursory look at this armorial will impress the reader with four phenomena. The first is that the central part of some 2400 german arms were preceded by 372 mostly imaginary arms ultimately derived from the Bodensee clones of the Richental chronicle of the church council in Constance 1414-1418, followed by a mixed tail of 200 towns (rarely seen) and 400 imaginary arms not found elsewhere. The second is the large number of repetitions of german arms, not only among princes and the displays of ancestors (the third phenomenon), but even among unverifiable lower nobility – or gentry, using an english term. More than a third of the germans (867 of 2395 items) in segments 12-30 are from repeated arms. The fourth phenomenon is the ultimate addition of a genealogical-armorial chronicle of the dukes of Bavaria.
On the basis of layout, headers and content this armorial has been divided into 43 segments (App.A). The first segment [1-3] is an introduction with the arms of the author Jörg Rugen al. Georg Rüxner and the two sponsors (Recht führer und kürigierer des Wappenbuchs und des adels) Ortolf Trenbach and Oswald Messenbach.

The first major part (segments 2-10) has the arms of the pope, emperor and electors as well as three types of imaginary arms common to the members of the Bodensee group of armorials. The 24 sets of Quaternionen or pillars of the state in segment 10 uses layout E and the RUG-A woodblock giving 16 items per page in a 4 x 4 display, a row per set. The Ternionen (three best of each) and the several kings with mostly imaginary arms use layout A and the RUG-C woodblock with a crown above each item and two rows per page. The block of inserts (segments 05-07; 16a-16d; 151-198) must according to their 19th century foliation of 303-307 at that time have been placed at the rear of the 'volume'. The leaves were probably reordered on the last rebinding, but not too expertly as they were both refolded and inserted so that the 'Kings' were divided into three parts and the Ternionen into two parts. The ULB Tirol suggested that the original order would have been in two quires, one as (ff. 16c-16a, 4-7, 5-6, 16d-16b), the other with ff.8-15.4 This proposed reshuffle must be correct as the revised segment of ternions (06, 02; ff. 16c, 4rv, 5r; items 175-186, 4-21) would now begin by 'the three oldest arms' and the 'nine worthies' as do most other armorials in the group. The kings would be joined together, naturally beginning (as now) with the emperor and Prester John on fo. 5v, and the formal display of 'heavenly order' on ff. 16v-21r (16r is blank page) being headed by the pope, the emperor, his heir and principal titles, the electors and the 'pillars of the empire' (the quaternionen).

The second major part actually flows directly from the preceding with segment 11 dioceses (21v-24v; 310-372) beginning on the back of the last page of quaternions. This implies that the present segmentation might be somewhat artificial, and that at least segments 04 and 08-20 were conceived as one series with more or less distinct subseries. The electors (08) and dioceses (11) use layout B and woodblock RUG-B (without crests), while segments 13-20 princes, counts and barons use layout H and woodblock RUG-D giving just 2 achievements of shield-of-arms and crested helmets per page. These are usually placed in curtesy, but rarely related.

Segment 12 is almost a major part in itself with 518 items in layout R, which has almost become the signature layout of the armorial presenting the arms and dominions of the rulers and princes of Europe (and the world). The layout is likely to have been composed of a central imprint of the RUG-D woodblock with the sides and bottom of the page doubly ruled in light ink. The vertical lines are approximately 34 mm apart, which makes room for 6 shields on each side, with another 3 to be placed below the line between the top of the two bottom shields. These up to 15 smaller shields were probably drawn by hand, but might have been stamped individually.

The series in the third part using layout J and woodblock RUG-E has shields of a different type in curtesy. The 4 x 4 layout used for segments 21-27 also employs crests. The items are all Germans, except for the first page (124r) of Italians, which may have been added as an afterthought.

The fourth part (segment 28) has paired displays of four ancestors using layout S and a combination of woodblocks RUG-A and RUG-E, see chapter 8 for details. The single page segment 29 for the Passauer canon Ludwig Fröschl von Marzoll is a later addition in imitation.

The large fifth part of 960 items in segment 30 is difficult to subdivide. Some pages have headers and little effort was made to rationalize the mostly southern Germans, of which many are repeats of earlier parts. The layout U and three rows of the RUG-H woodblock give 15 crested arms per page. It is followed by a number of prestamped, but otherwise blank pages, of which the first couple of pages have some crudely drawn arms of people related to one of the early owners of the manuscript, married to a Bremser von Rüdesheim living 1561 (fo.315r) in segment 31.

The sixth part is a miscellany only held together by the use of layout E and woodblock RUG-A (like the quarternions in segment 10). These are the segments 32-36 and 40-41. For good measure we might add segments 37-39 with layout B and woodblock RUG-B (as for the dioceses in segment 11). The hereditary lands of the Habsburgs on the four pages (231r-232v; 2781-2844) in segment 32 raise no problems. Similarly on the surface, the 'greek' nobles in segments 39-40 (249r-260r, 260v blank; 3225-3452) ought not to trouble the reader – well, they are in different layouts. However, on closer examination these two segments must, with the preceding segment 38 'dioceses' (242v4-248v; 3111-3224), be a rehash of the Richental chronicle-cum-armorial (KCR) with many pseudo-greek additions. The first part of page 242v contains the four last grand masters of the Teutonic Order (segment 37) of a series known also from SGH:308-337 (St.Gallen, p.47), BLW:273-299 (Berliner WB, 45r) and one or two other armorials. The segments 34-36 (239v10-240v; 3045-3080), similarly linked to the previous segment, are a curious mix of confounded English nobles also found in other armorials like the Ingeram and Grünenberg (e.g. earl Warenne, BLW:101, ING:231, and GRU:1218) and emblems of the Teutonic Order. Except for the flow-over (and problems of identification), there are few problems with the list of 200 German towns in segment 33 (233r-239v9; 2845-3044). The solitary page 262v (between blank pages) for segment 41 might be an afterthought with italian towns and Prague. Taken together this miscellany appears to be the result of rather unreflecting copying probably as various sources came by – and fantasy bound the part together.

The seventh and last part is the genealogical-armorial chronicle of the dukes of Bavaria noted as segment 42 (267r-314v; 3561-3617). While the armorial per se (segments 02-41) appears to have been painted on one type of paper only5, three different types of paper were used for the chronicle. As a chronicle, it was written in the same cursive hand6 as the legends and at places interspersed with shields-of-arms. These might have been hand-drawn or stamped with a woodblock as the writing of the chronicle progressed. The dimensions of these shields are larger than used for the woodblocks mentioned in App.B.7 The shield on page 313r is still larger.

Summarising the structural elements, it appears that Jörg Rugen designed this armorial with an introduction of idolized persons (the ternions), followed by a registry of realms before the main part for the Holy Roman Empire led by the pope and emperor supported by the electors and the 'pillars of the empire' for the high and low nobility. To this were added two series of german nobility, possibly made for a different purpose (viz. the many repeats), some ancestral displays related to the sponsors, a traditional listing of the emperors hereditary lands such as both Friedrich III and his successor Maximilian I liked to place buildings (e.g. in Innsbruck and in Wiener Neustadt). Finally a hash of towns and items copied from a Richental/KCR-clone or source collection was added.

2.3 Author
The author Jörg Rugen al. Georg Rüxner or Rixner was probably born around 1460 and died after 1526.8 The surname Rüxner is to be preferred, though Rugen is used here due to the title of the armorial. He was a professional herald, who served various masters, and was given the worknames Jörg Jerusalem, Jörg Brandenburg, and Georgio Elsas.9 The several names used have been are not mentioned in the appendix.

9 The information on Jörg Rugen al. Georg Rüxner is based on information found (in german) on the internet until 5.12.2012, incl. papers by Klaus Graf and Lotte Kurras. The information in Allgemeine Deutsche Biographie, 1890, documented in various manuscripts in his autograph, except for Elsass (Alsace), which was suggested from the list of heralds at the Reichstag in Worms 1495 where Eberhard im Bart was raised from count to duke of Württemberg.\textsuperscript{10} The earliest mention of a Georg Elsass was as a pursuivant in 1486 in the service of emperor Friedrich III, a time and function supporting the proposed time of his birth. 1526 is the last documented reference to him. He had a slightly older brother-in-law Hans Eisen living in the county of Henneberg in Thuringia.

He is known to have borne arms. Not only are they in the introduction to this armorial [3], but also on a 1504 woodcut by the Augsburger artist Hans Burgkmair the Elder and in other manuscripts.\textsuperscript{11} This shows him as an elderly bearded man holding a herald's staff in his right hand and supporting a shield of his personal arms with his left hand. His is wearing a herald's tabard in the blue-white lozenge of Bavaria overlayed by a cross of Jerusalem. The composition was reused for a drawing of 1520 for a bavarian herald, though the cross was simplified and the Rugen arms replaced by the quarterings of Swabia, Bavaria, Franconia and the Palatinate. The 'portrait' of c.1495 in Wien, ÖNB, ms.2936:Pt.2:11v of a youngish herald in bavarian tabard wearing a leaf chaplet and holding a herald's rod was probably idealized. This illustration has his name 'jörg rugen perssofanndt' and his devise 'es war und wirt'.

Besides this armorial Rugen is known as the author of several treatises on tournaments. The best known is\textit{ Anfang, Ursprung und Herkommen des Thurnies inn Teutscher Nation ...}, which was published in four printings between 1530 and 1535 in Simmern, with woodcuts by HHI, probably the Wittelsbacher Pfalzgraf Johann (II) von Pfalz-Simmern al. Herzog Hans von Hunsrück.\textsuperscript{12} This book purports to give the history of tournaments in Germany from the first one in Magdeburg in 938. Most of the book is pure fantasy to which are added names and arms of contemporary families. Various spin-offs or 'drafts' were presented to towns and princes, e.g. the 1198 to the town of Nürnberg, for which he received a gratuity from the town council. But he had (kindly!) included the names of several patrician families. A shorter tournament chronicle dated 1494/1499 is known in at least two versions, of which one was dedicated to Johan Morsheim, a member of the Heidelberger court of the count palatine elector.

Besides the genealogical-armorial chronicle of the dukes of Bavaria in segment 42, Rugen also wrote other genealogical works (not examined). One for the Zollern electors of Brandenburg, surviving in Wien, ÖNB, ms.2799:75v, 98r, a.o.; a genealogical-armorial chronicle of 50 folios, this time for the margraves of Saxony, has survived as Jena, ULB Thüringen, ms.Prov.f.262, probably from c.1520; 13 a third work concerned the dukes of Mecklenburg.

One cannot reconstruct the career of Jörg Rugen, but the following outline is suggested, mainly drawing on the findings of Klaus Graf. He might have been born in the county of Henneberg in Thuringia, possibly being educated in Erfurt, one of the region's major centres of learning. If born c.1460, he might have entered imperial service as a junior herald or apprentice, by 1485 being given the title or workname Elsass (Alsace) from one of the hereditary lands of the Habsburger emperor Friedrich III (r.1440-1493). He appears to have used the name Elsass at least until october 1495, when Maximilian I (king of the Romans from 1486, emperor 1508, d.1519) gave him a recommendation, when he intended to visit Jerusalem. Shortly before, at the imperial Diet (Reichstag) in Worms 1495, he wrote a list of (10-13) sets of quarternionen for Eberhardt im Bart von Württemberg, who was promoted from count to duke. At the same time, he must have used just the simple 'Jörg Rugen, perseverant' as author of letters and treatises.

By 1499 he was in some service at the Heidelberg court of the elector palatine Philip von Wittelsbach [609]. He continued his relations with the Wittelsbacher dukes, possibly living at the court of Georg of Bavaria-Landshut [725] before 1503, having a portrait made in 1504 (indicating the workname Jerusalem), being noted as a bavarian herald and bavarian honorary squire (Ehrenknecht) with the workname Jerusalem at the Reichstag in Worms 1509, being at the wedding of the next elector palatine (Ludwig V, r.1508-1544) in 1511, keeping the titles in a work of 1515, finally coming to Neumarkt in Oberpfalz by 1526, after being in Nuremberg in 1525 (using the title as an imperial herald or Reichsherold, even king-of-arms, Jerusalem). There are no certain references to him after 1526.

In between he must have joined the Hohenzollern electors of Brandenburg, using the workname Brandenburg in 1505 (in a report of the Reichstag in Cologne), in a work of 1515 and being imprisoned in Berlin in 1519. Also in 1519 he attended the election in Frankfurt of Charles V

13 The manuscript with the armorial genealogy of the electors of Saxony dated 1573 (on fo. 56r, last page) with Georg Rüxner named as author on fo.2r is written in a different and later hand — and probably a copy with high quality illustrations. (king of Spain 1516, emperor 1530, resigned 1556, d.1558) as king of the Romans, and made a report for the wife of the elector of Saxony. During 1520 he wrote other works concerning Saxony.

He used the name Rugen at least during 1494-1505, and Rixner not until 1515 (usually as Rixner or Rüxner genant Jerusalem). He may well have served as a herald to more than one master at a time, while simultaneously writing for other highly placed customers. His late contemporary and colleague Caspar Sturm Reichsherold Germania al. Teutsschland simultaneously served the archbishop-elector of Mayence cardinal Albrecht von Brandenburg.\textsuperscript{14} My own preferred guess is that Jörg Rugen was in Habsburger service until 1495, transferring to Wittelsbacher service, probably first with the elector palatine in Heidelberg, moving on to Landshut in Bavaria until some time (c.1505) after the death of duke Georg (in 1503), when he transferred to the Hohenzollern elector of Brandenburg, moving back to Heidelberg a few years later, and again going to Berlin between 1512-1519, possibly staying in Saxony before finally settling in Neumarkt in Oberpfalz with Friedrich 'der Weisse', a brother of the elector palatine. In spite of his presumed wanderings he must have kept in touch with his (former) habsburgian masters being allowed to officiate as a senior herald at major imperial occasions, like the Reichstagen, and holding the titles of Jerusalem and Reichsherold, presumably as an honorary king-of-arms.

2.4 Date and place of manufacture

In his survey of tirolean manuscripts published in 1905, H.J. Herman dated this armorial to c. 1492 and made in Bavaria\textsuperscript{15}, which might be any place between the Bodensee, Salzburg and Würzburg in the north. The current estimate of the ULB Tirol is that the manuscript was written and painted in Bavaria c. 1495/1498. This dating was made mainly of the dates of death of key persons in the 'prince's' segment \textsuperscript{12}. The only datable note (apart from any datable item) is the dedication on fo.265r to duke Georg of Bavaria-Landshut (r.1479-1503). The above dating is supported in that one of the sponsors, Ortolf Trenbach, died in 1502.

Passau, on the austro-bavarian border north of Salzburg, is mentioned on fo.188r [1803-1807] in the ancestral display added later for doctor Ludwig Fröschl von Marzoll, a canon of Passau. A further note on Passau is the mention of the burial of duke Wilhelm of Bavaria on 15\textsuperscript{th} November 1507 on fo.262v [3452] – in a different hand. A few further details on later owners in 1541 and 1561 can be found in ULB Tirol. The possessions of the sponsors Trenbach and Messenbach were 50 km west and 25 km south of Passau respectively.

The watermarks provide little help. Variants of the handweight-cum-circle mark is known on paper from Nürnberg in 1448.\footnote{Rückert & al. 48.}

As noted in subchapter 2.2 on the structure, this manuscript need not have been conceived or made as it has survived. Various fragments may have been written either before or after the 'official' dating of 1495/1498. The many repeats, especially in the large segment 30, suggest that several overlapping sources were used to cull items from. This must have been done without remembering (or cross-referencing) whether the family and its coat-of-arms was already entered. The help of the two sponsors is most visible in segment 30, where properties belonging to families can be placed in the same dioceses (Salzburg and Passau) as those of the sponsors.

Though there are no data available on the paper used for ff.74-224 and the chronicle segment 42 was made of different paper types from the first (and presumably main type), the unused prestamped pages are of the main weight-cum-circle watermark type. This suggests that the armorial parts were painted within a narrow time frame defined by the entries in the 'princes' segment 12. The bavarian chronicle may have been added later.

Only a few items provide the crucial information for dating the armorial. These are probably the ones used by Herman in 1905 and by the staff of the ULBT. Composing and painting such a large armorial took time and one must allow for delays in communicating deaths and accessions from one end of Europe to the other. Emperor Friedrich III died on 19.08.1493 and the pair emperor Friedrich III and king Maximilian were mentioned together in the 'presentation' segment 8 [199, 202], supporting the dating by Herman. The accession of pope Alexander VI (Borgia) on 11.08.1492 [16v; 148] and of Alexander of Lithuania [767] in 1492 do not contradict his dating, but the naming of Alexander as king of Poland (from 1501) may.\footnote{Fo.16r is blank. If fo.16 is a single leaf, then the papal arms may have been added later.} In any case Jörg Rugen did not consider changing the imperial arms before presenting the armorial to a customer or benefactor. At the other end we have three items: king Ferdinand of Aragon died in 1496 [461], king Charles VIII of France died in 1498 [385], and elector Johan Cicero of Brandenburg died in 1499 [213].

We do not know whether Jörg Rugen had the necessary artistic skills to draw and colour the arms in this armorial. If the portrait in ÖNB ms. 2936 was drawn by him, he must have been an accomplished artist. But the use of woodblock prestamping and the tricking of colours indicate involvement of a professional workshop in a major town, if only as provider of paper over the duration of manufacture. Though parts may have been done earlier, most of the armorial was probably painted and written in increments from 1493 and perhaps until as late as 1499 or 1501.

3. Imaginary arms

The best listings of imaginary arms among the armorials of the Bodensee group can probably be found in the Richental Cronicle of Constance (KCR) and the Grünenberg (GRU). The former as a probable first, the latter having a fine organisation as well as one of the best artistic presentations. The St. Gallen (SGH) does have the largest number of ternionen and quaternionen, but the present armorial has some large selections too. Knights of the Round Table and heroes related to Charlemagne and the siege of Troy are rarely found outside the French armorials.

3.1 Ternionen, Magi and the Nine Worthies

The sets of three in segments 2 and 6 [4r-5r, 16crv; 4-21, 175-186] personify the knightly virtues and were used as an introduction to the armorial of Conrad Grünenberg. The 'three oldest arms' and the Nine Worthies on folio 16c were probably intended to be the opening, just as in the Grünenberg.

The number three is of course a magical number and was first used in this sense in triplicate in the French poem Voeux du paon or Vows of the peacock from 1312 by Jean de Longuyon. His joining of nine men famous in the contemporary romances, historical literature or in the Bible became very popular and spread across Europe, with coats-of-arms becoming part of the iconography.

Longuyon selected nine champions (Nine Worthies / Neuf preux / Neun Helden) to represent the triads: Hector, Alexander, and Caesar for the pagans; David, Joshua, and Judas Maccabeus for the Jews; and Charlemagne, Arthur of Britain, and Godfrey of Bouillon for the Christians. Each of the worthies had the qualities of the perfect warrior: they were conquering heroes and rulers, who brought glory to their nations, attracted valiant followers and were known for their prowess in arms. They also embodied virtues held valuable by the upper classes of the time: courtesy, loyalty, prowess, hardiness, largesse, frankness, and above all: service to the country and the church.

Some time later, probably around the beginning of the 15th century, the triads expanded in two directions. The all-male worthies got female counterparts: ancient Roman heroines or amazons, biblical heroines from the Old Testament, and female saints. This direction can be followed in both France and Germany, though not in the Bodensee armorials, with extension of the virtues to self-sacrifice, religious devotion, and chastity.

Apart from the inclusion of the Three Magi [4r1-3; 4-6], the second direction appears to be purely German. Several other triads were added, such as anointed kings, saintly persons, foreign princes (the sultan, Prester John) and more surprisingly the embodiment of vices in the persons of Nero and Nabucco.¹⁸

The arms attributed to the Nine Worthies differ between the Bodensee armorials. The ones present here differ from those in the St. Gallen (SGH), but are generally similar to those found in Richental (KCR), Donaueschingen (DWF) and Grünenberg (GRU).

3.2 Quaternionen or the Pillars of the State

The 96 coats-of-arms attributed to the groups of four (Quaternionen) in segment 10 [18v-21r; 214-309] are, strictly speaking, not imaginary. The Quaternionen der Reichsverfassung, also known as Viergruppen von Reichsständen, the Vier Säulen von das Reich, Four Pillars of the Empire or Four of each Estate, are a uniquely german phenomenon. The earliest evidence of this mythology is the statues on the front of the Frankfurter Römer or Rathaus, added in 1414, and this was probably related to a visit by the then recently elected king of the Romans Sigismund of the house of Luxembourg (r.1411-1437). One of the earliest listings is the one in the Richental manuscripts (KCR), presumably noted 1415, edited c.1420-1430, and the surviving manuscripts made from 1460 on.

A short description of the territory and the powers ruling Germany during the Middle Ages might be useful in this place. Though modified to suit the items and discussions in this edition, it ought to be reasonably accurate, and for the territorial borders and rulers the reader may consult appropriate standard works or the precisions given in Clemmensen OM.

The Reich, the Empire or Heilige Römische Reich des Deutschen Nations, HRR for short, comprised at the end of the Middle Ages the present Germany, Austria, Switzerland, Czechia, Italy and the parts of France and the Low Countries east and north of the Rhône-Meuse-Schelde line. In practice the emperor and the imperial Diet had no jurisdiction over the Swiss and southern Italians. Within the HRR there was a multitude of mostly sovereign principalities, and the emperor had to rely on his own lands, income and allies in order to carry out his policies. For some purposes

¹⁸ A fuller discussion of the lives and virtues of the individuals as well as the iconography can be found in Clemmensen T and in Wyss NH.
he could call on the imperial Diet for decisions and the force necessary to carry them out. He could, and did, from time to time elevate certain rulers in rank, mostly from comital to ducal rank.

The head of the HRR was usually referred to as emperor, though in fact this title was only appropriate after the pope had crowned him in Rome. He was formally elected king of the Romans or Deutsch-König by a majority of the seven Electors or Kurfürsten, usually at Aachen, the ancient capital of Charlemagne. Sigismund was elected in 1411, but only crowned emperor in 1433; Friedrich III elected 1440, crowned 1452; and Maximilian elected 1486 (in the reign of his father), crowned 1508. The electors were the three archbishops of Köln (Cologne), Mainz (Mayence) and Trier (Trèves), all from the Middle Rhine region, the king of Böhmen (Bohemia), the duke of Sachsen (Saxony), both from eastern parts, the Markgraf (marquis) of Brandenburg in the north and the Pfalzgraf am Rhein (elector palatine), a member of the Wittelsbacher family, who also ruled Bayern (Bavaria).

Referring back to Carolingian times, there were several honorary imperial offices, usually in two degrees: Erz- (arch-), and Erb- (hereditary). They were modelled on the standard functions of an early medieval court: e.g. chancellor (Kanzler), marshal, cupbearer (Mundschenck), steward (Truchsess) &c. It may appear confusing, but many principalities, incl. abbeys, had similar honorary offices, and the office-holding family might have been given the office at various times by various dynasties, e.g. Hohenstaufen, and an office might be inherited through marriage.

The principal territories, which with modifications have survived to this day, were Sachsen (Saxony, present Niedersachsen and northern Rheinland-Westphalen), Brandenburg-Pommern on the north-eastern borders, Thüringen south of this (Thuringia, present Sachsen and Thüringen), Franken in centre (Franconia, split between several of the present Länder), Bayern (Bavaria) to the south-east, Schwaben (Swabia, present Baden-Württemberg, part of Bayern, and the northern parts of Switzerland), Elsass-Lothringen (Alsace-Lorraine), then predominantly German politically, though like the Low Countries split between languages). The Rhineland was split in Upper (Swabian), Middle (approx. Rheinland-Pfalz) and Lower (Belgium, Luxembourg and parts of Nordrhein-Westphalen). The French parts, incl. Savoie, Provence and the Low Countries, were heavily influenced by the Burgundian dukedom during 1360-1477, and later contested by France itself. The Italian parts were traditionally and politically interesting to the emperor as pressure points on the Church playing also on the mini-states of the area, especially Milano.

This and Carolingian romantic lore were the basis on which the Quaternionen-mythos was built in order to support the dignity and influence of the emperor, urgently needed by Sigismund, who was hard pressed by internal as well as external enemies and competitors, and who sought to increase his influence, e.g. by supervising church councils (e.g. in Konstanz 1414-1418).

The Quaternionen were first mentioned in literature in a poem Spruch von römische Reich dated 1422, with 10 groups of 4, but their number increased rapidly. Numerology played a large part in its development, viz. the 4 prophets, 4 evangelists, 4 arms of the cross &c. The tradition may have been founded during 1350-1364 by the father of Sigismund, emperor Karl IV (r.1346-1378), but expanded and was promoted as supports of the emperor as guardian of the Church and the estates, rather than being dependent on the electors and the Diet (Schubert Q 27). The tradition was maintained and appreciated by his Habsburger successors: Albrecht II (r.1438-1439), Friedrich III (r.1440-1493) and Maximilian I (r.1493-1519).

The RUG contains 24 sets of quaternionen (96 items). The names and details of arms given to the various members might vary between sources - noted if possible in the discussions of the individual items. In time they would be found in literature (e.g. Hemmerlin, c.1445; Peter von Andlau, 1460; Johannes Agricola, 1534), as murals (Innsbruck 1495; Überlingen Rathaus), in woodcuts (Burkmair, 1510), and on drinking glasses (examples in the Amsterdam Rijksmuseum; in Trier, 1650). For examples of the southern german armorials, which include quaternionen: ING (64), MIL (72), and SGH (112), see the survey in Clemmensen Q.

The fiction was also extended below the level of the empire. We have the Vier Landesritter von Elsass, which in 934 went with Kaiser Heinrich against the Huns: Andlau, Fleckenstein, Rathsamhausen and Landsberg (Kindler OB 2:450), apart from Andlau also members of TG.Wolf.

3.3 Real kingdoms and imaginary realms

As the other members of the Bodensee group, this armorial also blends the rulers of western and central Europe with those of fiction. Shuffling of pages over time and across the numerations has left the coats-of-arms of these 'sovereigns' dispersed over 3 segments. Whoever made the present binding did not note or consider that though the layout was the same, the first 17 leaves contained two different sets of arms: ternionen and realms. He or they even placed the single leaf with the papal arms on the verso in between.

The major segment 3 [5v-15v; 22-147] begins with the contemporary kingdoms with the now ritual inserts of the 'great eastern potentate' Prester John and the emperor of Constantinople, defunct for half a century. Some minor states, more dependent than sovereign, are also included, while the realms of France, England, Denmark and Hungary are omitted. These four countries together with Cyprus and a repeat of Castille are nevertheless placed on fo.16bv [169-174] of segment 5 in contemporary forms. The remainder of the 126 items in this segment are imaginary kingdoms culled from Richental, Grünenberg and / or other sources.\textsuperscript{20}

No obvious serial copying can be seen, though some very small fragments are similar to one or more potential sources. Several coats-of-arms, not seen in the members of the Bodensee group studied so far, were inserted in both the major segment and in the double and single leaves making up the two smaller segments 5 [16ar-16bv; 151-174] and 7 [16drv; 187-198]. Some legends were probably invented and added to some of the arms in these three segments.

Four of the five arms [12rv; 114, 117-120], all of which are also found in e.g. the armorials UFF, MIL, HBG, GRU or notably in KCR, were proposed by J.J.F. Kennedy as arms of some irish chiefs or sub-kings from his reading of GRU and KCR, the others being unknown to him. The subgroup: Langonia / O'Neills Mór of Ulster (hand), Ultingen / McCarthy Mór (stag), Conixen / Connacht (3 fish), Daschlag/Desmond (saltire) and Ultingen / Ulster-Burgh (cross) might well be the arms of notable irish chiefs with their names confounded, and possibly provided by the (irish?) abbot Heinrich (r.1392-1399 ) of the Schottenkloster in Wien or its daughter house in Konstanz, as suggested by Kennedy. The hypothesis is supported by the modified english lions for Ireland / Hibernia and the genuine arms of Butler and the FitzGerald earls of Kildare and Desmond. A set of inverted arms of Scotland is appended at the end.

4. Princely dominions

The 518 items in segment 12 (25r-48v, 373-890) make up 42 displays of the possessions of european kings and princes and another 6 for imaginary rulers of Babylonia, China, Turkey, India and the last byzantine emperor (see chapter 3 for details).

4.1 Princes of the empire.

The major part is the 27 sets of princes of the empire, which include nearly all the semi-sovereign secular german princes as well as 3 italian, 3 silesian, and one franco-italian prince. Allowing for one or two curious spellings the author have the first names correct for all the german and silesian \textsuperscript{19} Discussions and references in Werminghoff Q, Schubert Q, and Clemmensen Q as well as articles on Wikipedia and other websites.

princes while the three non-germans were left without names. All of these were contemporary, i.e. reigning within a few years before 1500. No attempt was made to check the actual personal seals of these princes, but all of their (composite) coats-of-arms appear to be essentially correct. The princes are placed at the end of the segment from page 35v [609] on, starting with the four secular electors. The princes are not placed in any obvious order of precedence or relation. The only set standing out is the one for the king of Poland and grand duke of Lithuania [41r, 767-774], which the author must have regarded as an imperial prince and not as a sovereign king.

Each display or set uses a similar lay-out, a central achievement (arms and crest) with a varying number of smaller shields in columns on each side and a bottom row – here numbered by rows as suggested by the set for the elector of Saxony [36r, 625-640], where the main arms of Saxony heads the left column and the arms of his imperial office of marshal heads the right column (the central item is numbered first of the set). Most of the secondary items represent territories held by the central person and used as a part of his official titles with the top ones often incorporated into the composite arms of the principality. A few items were added for fiefs of which the central person was the overlord. Several items are not 'real' territorial arms, but refer to more-or-less fabulous ancestors or ancestral lands, e.g. for Bavaria [39r, 709-724] – and a few others could not be placed and may have been invented by the author, e.g. Ambonosa or Anbonosa in Lithuania [773]. The presence of the Regalienschild or Warteschild (arms used for presumptive claims –or?- sovereign prerogatives) is another characteristic feature of the prince's sets.

Most of the territorial arms known from other sources have the correct colours and figures, while no judgement can be made on items only known from this armorial. In a few cases names appear to have been transposed from the sources used. The places furthest from Southern Germany have some items added, which cannot be identified. The set for the imperial duchy of Holstein [41v, 775-782] has its fill of mistakes. The history of the 'dual duchies' Schleswig and Holstein is very complex with splits, separation and rejoining, rulers being either of different ancestry or cadet lines of the same ancestry, with Schleswig belonging to Denmark and Holstein to the Empire (HRR). This is not the place to review its history, but only to note that around 1500 both duchies belonged to the king of Denmark, Hans, the second king of the Oldenburg dynasty [397], and not to any Wilhelm. The names Holstein, Schleswig, Oldenburg, Delmenhorst, and Stormarn are appropriate to a listing of territories of the danish-german borderlands, but Gotland and its (invented) basilisk is not [779]. The cross assigned to Stormarn may have been a slightly confused

20 For a discussion of the imaginary kingdoms, see the reordering of the arms as a journey through the world in Delmenhorst, but more likely the be the flag 'Dannebrog' used for centuries (and today) as the national flag – actually the oldest one still in use. The lobster of Delmenhorst [781] is a rather funny invention for a small inland county slightly west of Bremen.

4.2 Kings and realms.

The first part of segment 12 begins with the last emperor of Constantinople, taken by the ottoman turks in 1454. This set like the 5-item subsegment (30v-32v; 477-536) belongs to the imaginary arms discussed in chapter 3. The 15 realms cover all the european monarchies of the time, including the titular kingdom of Sicily claimed by the junior line of the dukes of Anjou (34v; 585-598). For those missing Sweden and Norway, they might know that Norway [400] was in personal union with Denmark 1380-1814, and periodically Sweden was too [399]. For the short period 1497-1501 king Hans [397] ruled all three scandinavian countries, though Sweden had kept its independence from 1464 to 1497, and would again 1501-1520. Similarly both the Lusignan realms of Cyprus (30r; 469-476) and Armenia (28r; 437-444) belonged to the past. The former passing to the merchant republic of Venice in 1474 and the latter was taken by the turks even earlier.

Like the sets for imperial princes these pages too should display the major territories mentioned in the official titles of the monarchs. They rarely do, but the author did use quite a lot of ingenuity in inventing the displays. Most of the invented arms were taken from older armorials, possibly the chronicle of the church council held in Constance (Konstanz) on the Bodensee during 1414-1418, which had been in print since 1483, or one of the many clone manuscripts circulating, e.g. the Grünenberg and other members of the Bodensee group. One may divide the sets into two groups; the first, mostly correct, cover the 'germans': the possessions of emperor Maximilian (33r; 537-552), Bohemia [569], Hungary [553] and Denmark [397], to which we may add Anjou-Sicily [585]. The sets in the second group have sometimes more imaginary arms than actual royal possessions. Except for the quarterings, England [419] has only imaginary arms, from which Bodensee-armorials might be conjectured from the relevant references. France was spiked with four 'italo-spanish' items (Aragon, Sicily, Naples and Calabria) and the Champagne, Armagnac, Geneva and the small norman county of Harcourt had no particular place among the kings titles, though Champagne was an early addition to the royal demesne. The author often used Harcourt and Evreux to stuff a set. As for Spain (26v; 409-418) and other realms, some, or even most, of the titles might be relevant, but not the arms as presented. In the case of Spain there are three items named Granada and some unusual arms for Castille and Galicia. The old quarter of Leon was now named Spain. The Delmenhorst lobster and the 'gothic' basilisk also adorn the display of arms for king Hans of Denmark.

It was neither possible to place some of the names of territories nor to verify whether these and other 'imaginary' arms were ever actually used. My best guess is that most were invented fillers used to stuff displays intended to show the power, riches and influence of the monarchs and princes.

5. Nobles – high and low
Apart from the imaginary arms, all the coats-of-arms in this armorial belong to germans, i.e. in the wider sense of people within the Holy Roman Empire (HRR) including some bohemians in segment 15 [94v-99v; 1073-1098]. That is, except for the pope, four italians in segment 21 [124r; 1195-1198] and a curious selection of englishmen in segment 34 [239v10-240r8; 3045-3056], named in one of the possible sources as 'the twelve peers of England'.

Alltogether, there are 1845 german items in three major groupings and some minor segments of princes, counts, members of the Teutonic Order and the Habsburg dominions. Four layouts are used, each requiring a different woodblock for stamping the outlines of of the shield, helmet and mantling (App. B). To some extent the layout used determines the segmentation. Except for princes and counts, which follow the layout of the first major grouping, the minor segments are in the same 4x4 layout-E as used for the quaternionen and some of the 'greek' nobles.

The first of the major groupings have small segments of 10-32 items in the 2-item layout-H, each related to a distinct region [15-20; 94v-123v; 1073-1194], though the last segment is a kind of waste-basket mix. The second major grouping [22-27; 124v-179v; 1199-1642] has larger segments of 64-96 items in the 2x2 layout-J. Three of the segments cover the same regions as the first grouping. The third major grouping is presently designated as a single extra-large segment of 960 items in the 5x3 layout-U [30; 189r-220v; 1808-2767]. As some of the pages have regional headings, it is likely that this is really a grouping of collections of arms from at least the four regions of Franconia, Swabia, Bavaria and Austria. Because many of the families could not be identified and/or be placed topographically, and as the documented regional affiliations are to some extent mixed, further subdivision was impractical.

The reader should note that many coats-of-arms differ in their colours from what is commonly seen in other members of the Bodensee group or assumed to be the colours by modern authorities. Even apart from the chapters on the 'genealogy' of the dukes of Bavaria and the ancestors, this armorial has the largest frequency of repeats observed to date. Close to 20 % of the 1712 items discussed in this chapter make a group with members represented 2-4 times – and for segment 30 alone the frequency is raised to 27 %. This indicates that Jörg Rugen (or his team) did not intend this armorial to be a well-organized presentation, but rather that he (or they) culled whatever selection of sources at hand before moving on to the next selection. Any armorial encountered or sheaf of papers might be used more than once for culling.

5.1 Higher nobility
In addition to the large displays of princes and their dominions in segment 12, there are two supplementary segments 13 princes, 14 counts [49r-58r, 60v-94r; 891-936, 937-1072] using the 2-item layout-H like the following segments of barons (Freiherrn), knights and minor lords. Both of these segments appear to have been based on the Richental chronicle-armoriorial (KCR) or one of the Bodensee armorials derived from this. However, some of the arms copied (or inserted) were amended with christian names referring to contemporary or near contemporary persons. Jörg Rugen might easily have met these princes, dukes and counts at tournaments or at the imperial Diets, where he probably served in an official function at the time. Their presence is remarkable as first names are extremely rare in this armorial outside the chronicle.

5.2 Habsburgian dominions
The arms of the hereditary lands of the Habsburgers (Erbländer) were a recurring theme in the promotion of the family image. The family came from Burg Habichtsburg (Hawk's Castle) in the swiss canton Aargau, but acquired many and larger fiefs during several periods, notably 1270-1310 and 1368-82. These were mostly kept together with family members sharing the usufruit, but during a period around 1400 separated into several branches and were reunited by emperor
Friedrich III. 14 coats-of-arms together with another 93 imaginary arms from the Hagensche

   Another 23 names of people living and 5 problematic names [937-939, 941-944, 946-949, 951-958, 962-965; 940,

His son Maximilian I continued the tradition in erecting a town gate in his residential town of Innsbruck in 1499. The side fronting the street leading to the main square was decorated with at least 60 coat-of-arms.\textsuperscript{25} The tradition can be dated back to before 1435, when a series of 15 was inserted in the Grand amorial équestre de la Toison d'or.\textsuperscript{26} This series was copied into several clones of this armorial. The representations in the Bodensee armorials vary in size and have a different origin.\textsuperscript{27} In segment 32 [231r-232v; 2781-2844] there are 64 arms, a number that compares well with the contemporary Innsbrucker Wappenturm. Both have the 'burgundian inheritance' and the same core of kingdoms, duchies and counties – about a score of major dominions. In addition there were other minor lordships (even though named as counties), some of which are hard to find mentioned in the literature. The main difference between the two is that RUG includes 8 swiss cantons that had been independent for a century, while the Wappenturm has a couple of towns or lordships like Boulogne, Friuli and Aalst (Alost).

5.3 Teutonic Order

The military order of the teutonic or german knights (Ritter-orden Sta. Mariä des Deutschen Hauses zu Jerusalem) moved early from the Holy Land to the Baltic Coast, where they soon became the constant element in the crusades that eventually christened or forced the princes and people of Poland, Lithuania and along the Baltic coast to recognize the Pope in Rome – and the settlement of many germans in their former tribal lands. By the time of the making of this armorial the Order had almost lost its importance and in less than a generation (by 1525/30) its remaining territory would be transformed into the duchy of Prussia in loose vassalage to Poland.

Two segments and a curious insert form a series related to the Teutonic Order. The insert, segment 36 [240v9-16; 3073-3080], is headed gesamte fürstentom, and appears to continue the english on 240r in segment 34, e.g. item [3077] has the cancelled legend nettafelt erle, which comes from [3056]. The 8 items appear to be misrepresentations of burgundian fiefs. Both this and \textsuperscript{25} A miscoloured print is displayed today at the site. This print is slightly different from the (uncoloured) copper engraving of c.1760 by Salomon Kleiner showing the tower as renovated in 1604. The Kleiner engraving was reproduced in a paper by F-H. v. the segments surrounding it have a common source, either the Berliner (BLW), the St.Gallener (SGH), or a collection of notes from c.1470 preceding these.

Like the succeeding segment, the series in segment 35 [240r9-240v8; 3057-3072], has the same 4x4 layout-E used for the continuous entering of the Habsburger Erbländer and the towns. This segment has the personal arms of the grand master Ludwig (al. Jörg) von Ellrichshausen [3057], the uniform arms and the titles of four high officials, and the same arms for the territorial designations of local commanders (Komthurer) in Prussia.

The main part is the list of grand masters of the Teutonic Order in segment 36 [241r-242v3; 3081-3110] ending in 1449, but really continued to 1467 with the Ludwig mentioned above [3057, 3108, 3110]. This series has the same 3x3 layout-B continued with the 'greek' dioceses and dukes following it. Similar lists can be found in SGH:308-337, p.47 (ending in 1470), and BLW:273-299, 45r.28 The christian name given in these listings for Ludwig von Ellrichshausen or Erlichshausen, the last grand master named, is Jörg (George), which makes it a marker for a common source. The arms assigned to Poppo von Ortenach [3086] in BLW and RUG only, indicates that BLW and RUG are on one leg of the descendence and SGH on another leg from the ultimate source.

5.4 Foreigners
Apart from a few foreigners in segment 13 princes, there are four italians in segment 21 [124r; 1195-1198] and a curious selection of englishmen in segment 34 [239v10-240r8; 3045-3056], named in one of the possible sources as 'the twelve peers of England'. This latter segment was probably copied from a version of the Berliner Wappenbuch (BLW) – hardly from the better known Grünenberg (GRU) or the Ingeram (ING) or their ultimate source – as indicated by the concordance.

28 The list was discussed in 1941 by Roth HM. Supplementary data were taken from Arnold HM and Kittel OT. The Puchberg is largely a copy of the BLW, and the Bassenheimer WB mentions Poppo von Ortenach (Sieb 22/6.1.2:167). A similar sketch is present in Berlin, GstA PK, ms. OBA 29095:4r, another BLW clone. The 'old' Siebmacher supplements have lists of grand masters too, e.g. Sieb Sf5:2n5-29n.
5.5 German nobles in pairs

The first major grouping has small segments of 10-32 items in the 2-item layout-H, each related to a distinct region [15-20; 94v-123v; 1073-1194], though the last segment is a kind of waste-basket mix. The cut-off point between segments 14 and 15 is hard to determine. The items on 93v-94r [1069-1072] do not really fit into either segment, and the next two items on 94v are austrians, while nearly all of the families in segment 15 are bohemians or can be related to this region. The last of the problematic items [1074] is Heinrich Prueschenck, a notable austrian courtier of Maximilian I.

There are headers at the top of each page in this grouping indicating the rank and region of the items – except for segment 20, which is mixed with brabantians, a couple of bavarians, one hungarian and several unidentifiable. There are no christian names, apart from the Heinrich mentioned above. This omission was probably because Jörg Rugen was more interested in presenting families than individuals – except for the rich and influential people worth giving prominence. Contemporary lists of participants in tournaments might refer to men by their title only, if that was unique, but christian names were frequently mentioned in between. 29

The men or families come from five regions: Bohemia, Austria, Swabia, Franconia and along the Rhine. Places, where Jörg Rugen may have traveled, or people he may have met at tournaments or at court. There are a couple of unidentified – or perhaps better not verified – family arms and a single lordship belonging to an archbishop-elector [1162]. 30 Consistency in the modern sense should not be expected of medieval editors, which did not have the assistance of maps, indexes, databases and the internet. One might notice that people living along the Rhine from the Bodensee to the Channel might be included as rhenish (in the Rheinland or along the Rheinstrom) as well as belonging to either a region (e.g. Westphalia) or a principality consisting of discrete lordships (e.g. Trier).

Jörg Rugen must have made some kind of revision of the armorial, as the names of Heideck and Falkenstein were corrected on page 109r and 110v [1135, 1141]. Both have very similar coats-of-arms.

29 For examples see the members of the tournament societies listed in Kruse R.
30 The term identified used throughout this paper and in the comments to the armorial has two meanings. For imaginary arms and anonymous items representing 'real' people or lordships, where the coats-of-arms did not indicate a name, the meaning is that the item (family) could not be identified. The same meaning should be applied when a name appears incomprehensible and possibly misspelled or misread. For those names and arms that appear to be legible and conforming, the meaning is that the name-arms combination could not be independently verified in any of the armorial works available and/or named in the bibliography. A 'not identified' entry might have references added, which were not used to verify the name-arms combination as they may have come from the same ultimate source, e.g. references among members of the Bodensee group of armorials. Standard works like the 'Old' Siebmacher (SIE, Sieb Si, Sieb SiSu) and
5.6 German nobles in quartets

The second major grouping [22-27; 124v-179v; 1199-1642] has larger segments of 64-96 items in the 2x2 layout-J, pairwise in courtesy. Four of the segments cover regions mentioned in the first grouping, with Bavaria and Tirol as new additions. As in the previous segments, there are headers on each page.

Most of the items in the austrian segment 22 [124v-131r; 1199-1254] could not be identified. Austrians, i.e. families based in Upper and Lower Austria and Styria make up a majority of 32, with four from Bohemia and four from Carinthia (Kärnten). Breisgauers, people from southwestern Swabia, add a further 16 – according to the page headers. In reality, none of the 'breisgauers' could be verified as living there, though some names can be found in this locality. Two swiss, a franconian and a suspiciously looking bavarian make up this subsegment. Some five items are for well-known austrian families, but the rest ought to be scrutinized for a better understanding of the names and whether evidence of their use of arms might be available.

Most of the items in the segments 23-26 have been verified and most were also present in other armorials, e.g in the Grünenberg. Only the last segment from Tirol, 27 [172r-179v; 1579-1642], contains a fairly large number of unverified items, but medieval arms from Tirol are not well covered in the standard literature. The headers do not mention Tirol as such, but 'an der Etsch', i.e. the river Adige, which runs through present italian, though german-speaking, Southern Tirol, the province Trentino-Alto Adige. The region above Merano is also known as the Vintschgau (Val Venosta) and the stretch between Merano and Bozen (Bolzano) as the Etschtal.

There is a limited overlap of 7 % between the families noted in layouts H and J. 19 names are repeats within a segment, leaving only 10 names to occur in more than one of the segments 14 to 27.

5.7 German nobles in three rows

The third major grouping is presently designated as a single extra-large segment of 960 items in the 5x3 layout-U [30; 189r-220v; 1808-2767]. Each row has the first two items in curtesy – meaning they ought to be mirror images of the correct drawing of the coats-of-arms and crest. Some are, and some are not. In many cases the figures will front accordingly, but many figures (and quarters) cannot be distinguished from their mirror images without prior knowledge.\textsuperscript{31}

In this segment most of the places identified point to Bavaria and Lower Austria with a number of swabians, swiss and others added.\textsuperscript{32} Most of the items have comprehensible names, but about a third could not be verified (303 items). Though there is little, if any, topographic grouping of the items, it is likely that most of unverified and unplaced items refer to families living along the austro-bavarian border not too far from Salzburg and Passau. A region where the two named 'sponsors', Messenbach and Trenbach, had most of their lands. These 'unverified' families were probably of a fairly low social stature, possibly very like the lower strata of the british gentry or even came from buergeois origin. It has not been possible to verify the latter hypothesis. None of the items corresponds to known patricians of Augsburg or Nürnberg as given in the 'old' Siebmacher.

There are a considerable number of repeats both within this segment (110 different names) and between this and the previous two groupings (32 different names).

6. Church and dioceses
The arms of the reigning pope Alexander VI (Rodrigo de Borja y Borja, r.1492-1503) are placed in the small segment 4 [6v; 148-150] together with those of the Holy See (crossed keys) and the podesta of Rome (cross split embowed). The layout is fairly similar to the ones used in the St. Gallen (SGH:23n; 147-151) and the Ingeram (ING:38n; 120-122).

Though coats-of-arms of ecclesiastical persons or bodies (popes, cardinals, bishops, abbots, dioceses or abbeys) can easily be found in medieval armorials – they make up about 1 % of the arms surveyed to date – most can be related to the secular powers wielded as land-owning princes or as councillors. Lists or segments confined to spiritual members are rare. Among non-German armorials only the 8 dioceses mentioned in the Clémery or Nicolas Lützelbourg (CLE, NLU) armorials are worth mentioning. But even for the Germanic region we are down to the multitude more or less correctly noted by Ulrich Richental at the council of Constance during 1414-1418 (KCR), 53 dioceses listed in the Miltenberg (MIL), 20 dioceses in St. Gallen (SGH), the 28

\textsuperscript{31} Regrettably, the items in this and my other armorials have been blazoned inconsistently. Some are blazoned as drawn and some have been corrected. That this is also the case in works by other authors is of small comfort. Any reader ought to look critically at quarterings, their content and origins before accepting a representation as the 'truth' of the arms as they were born.

\textsuperscript{32} Migration over time, of course, has its part in explaining variations in the regionality given in the comments to the items. The regionality given in this (and my other) papers is generally to original (eldest recorded) seat of the major branch of a family (Stammsitz), if known, or to a castle or lordship first mentioned in the sources consulted. Map references (to commercial road maps) are available for many seats.
dioceses and abbeys in the Zürich (ZUR), and a mix of dioceses and towns in the Stuttgarter (STU). A few more may be added, if other copies, derivatives and copies of copies of KCR are included.

The present armorial have two lists of bishops or dioceses, one for members of the roman-catholic and one for the greek-orthodox church.

6.1 Dioceses subject to Rome

The representations of the coat-of-arms of the bishops in segment 11 [21v-24v; 310-372] follow the then emerging fashion of quartering the arms of the incumbent's family with those of the diocese. This fashion was first observed in the several versions of the Richental chronicle cum armorial written and painted c.1460. But Jörg Rugen not only followed the trend, but forced it upon all western bishops irrespective of whether they used it or not. The result for the non-german bishops is pure nonsense. While the arms of most of the german and polish bishops are generally correct in content (though not always in time), those of the english, french and italian bishops were copied in part from Richental, and had quarters added which fancied either Rugen or the artisans.

The 25 contemporary bishops with correct quarterings are grouped mainly in [22r-23r; 319-321, 328-343], while [23v-24r; 346-363] are a mixture of contemporaries, some unplaceables, and 6 bishops whose terms of office lay between 1434 and 1481, with one who died in 1418. Curiously the bishops of Constance and Basel [358, 361], which Jörg Rugen ought to have known from his travels, were misplaced in time.

6.2 Dioceses in the Greek-Orthodox Church

Very few of the 114 items in segment 38 [242v6-248v; 3111-3224] have been identified – in fact, apart from the first three entries the whole segment is the product of a creative armorist, who believed that order should rule and that even heretics living under the yoke of the 'Great Turk' would have the spiritual guidance of bishops dignified with a coat-of-arms, though less personal and imposing than those of their catholic brothers-in-Christ. They would of course be subject to the Patriarch of Constantinople, the magnificent imperial city lost to the moslems only half a century ago. However, Jörg Rugen was a little out of touch with the organisation of the christian churches. He did not choose an emblem of the orthodox Church, but selected the (actual) arms of a roman-catholic patriarch of Constantinople, apparently unaware that this was a purely titular form. And any resemblance between the names in this segment and reality would be coincidental.
The source of much of the segment is the Richental chronicle (KCR), probably the printed version D by Anton Sorg from 1483, and possibly a coloured volume as most of the common arms have identical representations. The first dozen items were selected from KCR and include the arms of some French bishops also known from a Portuguese herald's armorial records. There are half a dozen other arms taken from KCR. The remaining arms were created by Jörg Rugen and added to names either invented by him or copied out of Richental. A few names like Brango and Chrogo [3154, 3156] were taken out of context, as these two names were usually placed among the Hungarian nobles.

7. Towns

Civic arms are part of three segments of this armorial. The first is a subsegment of the Quaternionen in segment 10 with the 4 towns, villages, hamlet &c, discussed in the chapter on imaginary arms. The last segment is a smallish one of just 8 items in no.41 [262v; 3453-3460], naming i.a. Rome, Florence, Genoa and Prague.

The 200 towns in the principal segment 33 [233r-239v; 2845-3044] are all from within the Holy Roman Empire, and subdivided into subsegments, with each page designated by a subject header.

7.1 Imperial towns

The major subsegment is the 72 free and imperial towns or Freie und Reichsstädte [233r-235r8; 2845-2916]. The towns, which today range from the metropol of Hamburg to almost forgotten villages, had special privileges and were not subject to the local princes, but only to the emperor (Reichsunmittelbar), and they had their own bench at the imperial Diet and Reichstage – actually five banks, one for each imperial cycle or Kreis. The appropriate Städtebank der Städtekurie corresponded to those of the nobility and princes from each of the cycles: Rhine, Franconian, Swabian, Bavarian and Burgundian (mainly from Alsace-Lorraine and Franche-Comté, now parts of France). The oldest statutes of liberty were given to Aachen or Aix-la-Chapelle in 1166, and 85 towns were noted in the 1521 registry with more towns being free for shorter time-spans. A few towns have never lost their Reichsunmittelbarkeit and are like Hamburg today federal states, but most have lost their freedom, some before the Westphalian Peace of 1648, others during and after the revolutionary and napoleonic wars and the dissolution of the HRR in 1806.

Jörg Rugen did not give the arms for six entries, but all names except two or three could confidently be identified, and even these few might well have been pinpointed. Nearly all are documented to be free towns, though Eger or Cheb [2893] in Bohemia only held its privilege for about a hundred years. Very many of the arms are still in use, though the colouring may have changed – or the artisan may have made some minor mistakes. Many towns adopted the 'german' eagle as a symbol, either with the field Or or Argent – possibly for displaying their independence (Ar) or adherence to the emperor only (Or). A few arms are clearly attributed like the mount and crown for Kaysersberg [2908]. Why some important towns like Hamburg and Bremen and swiss towns like Bern and Zürich were omitted would be anyone's guess, but in all as a compilation this listing is reasonably complete and correct.

7.2 Princely capitals
This subsegment [235r-236v; 2917-2972] presents the town arms of the capitals of most of the major princes of the HRR, incl. the prince-bishops. It is notable that a few of the towns mentioned would be the actual residences of prince-bishops, and not their titular seats. The last page [262r; 2957-2972] is headed 'swiss towns', but only the first six belong here. The rest are from either southern Germany or the Low Countries.

7.3 Bavarian towns
The last subsegment [237r-239v; 2973-3044] really has two or four subparts, depending on how one reads the legends. The entries are civic arms for substantial towns (Städte) and market towns (Märkte) within the bavarian duchies of Georg 'der Reiche' in Landshut-Ingolstadt [3579] and Albrecht 'der Weisse' in München-Straubing [3587].

38 All members of the house of Wittelsbach used the titles duke of Bavaria and count palatine (Pfalzgraf am Rhein), but added a placename to indicate their dominions. The branches with possessions in Bavaria at the time were those of München (ESNF 1.1:106) and Landshut (ESNF 1.1:105). Albrecht 'the wise' of München (1447-1508) succeeded Georg 'the rich' of Landshut (1455-1503) at last unifying Bavaria and giving it a primogeniture statute in 1506 (HHStD 7:851). Both are mentioned in the chronicle in segment 41.
The first two subparts of towns belonging to duke Georg (Iörgen) begin at [237r; 2973] and [238r; 3005], continued by those of duke Albrecht from [239r; 3025] and [239v; 3036]. Most of the arms are still used today, even for some places that have been reduced to mere villages. Very few of the arms need be feats of fantasy, as a chief etc. of Bavaria is a rather common feature of bavarian arms. There are 25 entries of name only. A few names could not be resolved, but apparently Jörg Rügen managed to make only one single mistake, substituting a Nussdorf for Schwandorf [3039]. No attempt was made to determine whether he got the allegiance of the places correct, but the geographic details are readily available for those with the necessary patience.

8. Ancestors
The 32 sets of ancestors for 24 families in segment 28 (180r-187v; 1643-1802) and the addition for Fröschl von Marzoll in segment 29 (188r; 1803-1807) make up another unusual feature of this armorial. Each page contains two sets of four ancestors placed in curtesy (App. B, layout S). The paternal and maternal ancestors are not placed in columns like the quarters of a composite coat of arms, but rather per row with the two paternal degrees at the top and the maternal degrees at the bottom of the page. Numbering the entries on the page per row, the two principal persons per page might conveniently be termed the dexter (achievement 5) and the sinister (achievement 6) with the (arms of the) fathers as 2/F/dx and 3/F/sn. The paternal grandparents (grandmothers) in the top row would be 1/FM/dx and 4/FM/sn. The maternal side in the bottom row would come out as 7/MM/dx, 8/M/dx, 9/M/sn and 10/MM/sn.

Rather few of the sets could be documented with the material available, mainly the Siebmacher volumes, but the proposed layout is supported by the two Thumer sets [1677, 1758] and by other identified entries. However, the two Messenbach sets on 185r [1747, 1748] use the columnar display, but they were half brothers, and the quartered paternal arms were split in two. The Siebmacher entries contain several references to genealogical works that ought to be available at the major german libraries or archives, especially the Bayerische Staats Bibliothek in München.

Most of the principal persons appear to be contemporary with the making of this armorial (i.e. living c.1500) and to have their major possessions within a fairly small area centred on the Salzburg-Passau axis in the borderlands between Bavaria and Austria. Several of the families held honorary offices, e.g. Erbschenck or Erbmarschalck, from either the bishop of Passau or the prince-archbishop of Salzburg. These and other families had very old lineages and were wealthy locally influential, even though it would usually take another hundred years or two before they made it to the top acquiring the ranks of baron (Freiherr), count (Graf) or prince (Fürst).

A closer examination of the (incomplete) information on the families reveals that the items can be grouped as two spheres of intermarried families centred on the two sponsors: Oswald Messenbach [1, 1727] and Ortolf Trennbach [2, 1738]. Half the sets belong to the two sponsors, their children, nieces, nephews, an uncle and their spouses. The remainder would be more distant relatives, in the case of Alben [1647] some five degrees out from Trennbach. Of course, there might be more recent links not uncovered by this rather superficial genealogical examination, e.g. the marriage of Birgitta Trennbach and Wilhem Taufkirchen – or it might be that the sponsors might just have wished to include a selection of nobles in the area with whom they were acquainted, as well as their most close relations. The links of intermarriages might well be a secondary result of social and economic relations. There is no obvious logic in the sequence of the sets, e.g. the Messenbachs and Trennbchs being distributed among the latter half of the pages, and the half brothers Pihring on different pages.

The next but last set [1797] belongs to Wiguleus Fröschl von Marzoll (d.1517), who became bishop of Passau in 1500. His mother, Ursula Trennbach, was a cousin to the sponsor Ortolf von Trennbach and the family arms are the (only) principal ones in (the later) segment 29 (188r, 1803-1807; 188v blank). The hypothesis is that this set describes the ancestors of Ludwig Fröschl von Marzoll, a canon of Passau, a nephew of bishop Wiguleus. With the common naming rules, this Ludwig (III) would be the son of a putative Ludwig (II), brother of Wiguleus and son of Ludwig (I) and Ursula Trennbach. The Fröschl von Marzoll were prominent mine operators in the salt and metal businesses and around 1500 at the height of their power. Ludwig (II) would then have married into a tirolean family from the upper Etsch / Adige related to the influential Schlandersberger family in what is today the italian province of southern Tirol. If this hypothesis holds, this armorial might have been acquired by Ludwig (III) possibly from Ortolf von Trennbach, but more likely from bishop Wiguleus, a known benefactor of the diocese and an early church reformer.

9. Chronicle of the rulers of Bavaria

In the large segment 42 (265r/267r-314v; 3461-3617; 157 items), written in his own hand, Jörg Rugen al. Georg Rüxner presents a genealogical chronicle of the honourable (lobliche) princes of Bavaria and the House of Bavaria (i.e. Wittelsbach) from the first offspring of an amazon and a scythian warrior in prehistoric times to the men contemporary with himself. The short text on each generational pair of husband and wife are accompanied by their coats-of-arms, some of which duly appear in other segments. The pre-heraldic arms are of course imaginary ones attributed more or less systematically according to their titles and immediate ancestry.

The chronicle is dedicated to Georg 'the Rich' D.Bavaria-Landshut [3579] on page 265r with "dem durchlegten hochgeborender furstenn unnd hern / hern jörgen palczgrafen bey rein herzogen im nidern / und Obern pairnn, und mainem gnadigen hernn enpeut / ich jörg rugen mein gehorsam willig dienst in aller unde'/ tänigkeit perait zo vor gnedige' her ungezweiffelt ewer / fürstlich hab vor zum dickern mall von vil / krönigschreibern und äussen schriften pericht wie das / loblisch hausspairnn anfähiglich mittel und gegenwirdt / euwer gnaden regament befecht ..". The dedication fills nearly a page, leaving room only for a note that says the chronicle follows. The first arms are on page 267r.

The review is split into three parts for ease of discussion: 1) 'pre-historic' or the early tribal duchy of Bavaria until 788; 2) as a part of the carolingian realm until 911 and the later tribal duchy until 1180; 3) the wittelsbacher family until the time of writing. The full text has not been transcribed, but the essentials will be noted. For details and references, see the individual items. The dexter items from [272v; 3480] on were drawn in courteous (facing sinister), but are noted as they would have been carried, i.e. facing dexter.

9.1 The early (fictitious) rulers
Modern historians can trace the rulers of Bavaria back to Garibald I (r.550-590) of the Agilolfinger dynasty, the first known rulers of this tribal duchy. His daughter Theudelinde married Authani king of the Langobards or lombards of northern Italy. The Agilolfinger 'realm' was settled by the probably mixed tribe of 'bajuvarii' around 500 A.D. in the former roman provinces of Noricum and Raetia, and at times comprised parts of present Austria, north-eastern Italy and adjoining parts of the former Yugoslavia. The dynasty ruled until Tassilo III (r.748-788) and his wife Liutberga, a daughter of another langobard king, were dispossessed by Charlemagne, and the duchy incorporated in his empire.

39 Jörg Rugen wrote several pieces of this type featuring the Zollern electors of Brandenburg and the saxon electors, see the biographical notes in chapter 2.3.
40 The general references used for Bavaria and the Agilolfinger, Liutpoldiner, Salier and Wittelsbachers were ESNF 1.1:10-12 + 90-106, Sieb 1/1.1.1:14-17 (O.T. von Hehner, 1856), Köbler HL 48-53 (Bayern) + 797-798 (Wittelsbach); HHStD vol.7.xv-xliv (Karl Bost), Stokvis HM 3:162-169, and LxMA 1:1696-1710.
Jörg Rugen takes the story further back to prehistoric times and the union of Lampeto, an amazon queen or warrior known also to French and Italian heralds or armorists, and a scythian chieftain Miritan. Their son, Mirtadon, is one of only two in this subsegment of 34 generations [267r-284v; 3461-3527; 67 items], who is mentioned without a wife.

From this scythian-amazon scion the line invented by Jörg Rugen continues through a Roman married to a princess-heir to Albania and a grandson, who married the heiress to the 'count palatine' of Trier (north of the Rhine Palatinate (Pfalz) and otherwise ruled by a prince-archbishop & elector). Trier, in its various armorial presentations, forms the core of this subsegment. Its rulers and heirs marry princesses or princes of various territories, some fictitious, some modelled on Bavaria's neighbours Thuringia (Thüringen), Hesse (Hessen) and Moravia (Mähren), others named as Friesland and Preussen.

Considering the arms attributed by Jörg Rugen to the various persons and territories, it is easy to recognize that most have a serial character, composed of permutations of basic arms. For the 'count palatine' of 'Trier' we may count four different coats-of-arms: the heiress Sallada [3471] has Argent 3 crowns gules & chief sable ch. lion passt guard or (Trier-A), when we meet this title for the first time. In a later entry [3476] the chief and field became interchanged (Trier-B). Further into the chronicle [3478] we find Sable a lion guard argent (Trier-C) and finally in [3496] Sable a lion or (Trier-D), well-known for Brabant, Pfalz and Reuss von Plauen – all four both alone and in combinations.

The largest number of variants belong to 'Thuringia' (Gross-Thüringen) with Azure a star or between 6 stars or (mulets) in [3497], which might have been inspired by the arms of Pope Alexander V (Filargo) in KCR-P:759 or Wenzelas Schwesto in KCR:1125, both from Ulrich Richental's chronicle, which was the source of many of the imaginary arms found in the manuscripts of the Bodensee-group – either directly or indirectly. The arms of 'Thuringia' is combined with selections of Westphalia's white horse (but on sable, not gules) and two arms for 'Hessen', one a modification of the lion barry into Azure a lion per fess argent-gules, the other the arms Pily-paly argent-gules, actually Franconia (Franken), mostly a part of present day Land Bayern and coveted by the early Wittelsbachers. Two other coats-of-arms are frequently seen. 'Istria' with Argent a bend sable ch. 3 trefoils argent (trefoils slipped), trefly sable (only in combination), Chaldea / Caldeorum with the unusual Gules 3 banners in bend azure [3515], and 41 The amazons were well-known figures in both latin and vernacular epics and universal chronicles (Welchroniken), e.g. the various Alexandriads, writings of Isidoro of Sevilla (d.636) and the widely read bishop Otto of Freising (d.1158). LxMA 1:514-515.

'Friesland' [3487] with Ermine a fess azure, or possibly having the field crusily, only in combination too.

The land 'Albania' is impossible to place, but the major arms attributed to it is Per bend sable a griffin iss & paly of 8 or-azure [3465], though it appears that Gallus [3472] adopted new arms in addition to his paternal one, when he inherited both Albania and Trier. These second arms, also used as a quarter by his brother Angrissus, were Or a fess azure ch. mullet or between 2 crowns gules in chf and a crescent gules in base.

Surprisingly, the arms of the ‘diocese of Metz’, Or a cross paty azure, can be found in lorrainian armorials 50 years older as well as in [331]. The more common arms of the diocese are Gules a cross argent.

9.2 The Carolingians and their successors
The next subsegment [285r-291v; 3528-3551; 24 items] covers the period between the conquest by Charlemagne in 788 and 1180, when emperor Friedrich 'Barbarossa' stripped the welf duke Heinrich 'Löwe' of his fiefs and gave Bavaria to Otto von Wittelsbach, the count palatine of Bavaria (Pfalzgraf). Though Jörg Rugen begins a little early with the father of Charlemagne, Pipin 'the Short' (d.768), who elevated himself from the king's major-domo to king in 751, he correctly enumerates the first five carolingian king-emperors from Charlemagne (d.814) to Arnulf (d.899), but omits Louis or Ludwig III (r.900-911) and the last carolingian, his cousin Konrad I of Franconia (d.918). These carolingian kings ruled Bavaria as a royal demesne through local counts.

In order to cement the glorious pedigree of the Wittelsbachers, Jörg Rugen cleverly invents Arnold [3541], a brother of Ludwig III and marries him to a french princess, thus giving a double lineage back to the great Charlemagne. This Arnold gets a son Eckhardt, who becomes count of Scheyern and marries a countess of Wasserburg. A second Eckhardt with the byname 'with the boot' (Bundschuh) is followed by an Otto married to a princess of Cyprus and a third Eckhardt, who got Andechs by marriage and his son Bernhard before the entry of the first Wittelsbacher, Otto [3552], as husband of Barbara countess palatine of Scheyern.

42 For the Bodensee group, see Appendix C.
43 NLU:695, CLE:62, JHA:89 – the three armorials are related and were painted 1430-1450, see Clemmensen OM.
44 The sons of Ludwig II 'the German' (d.876) may have been D.Bavaria in succession in the order of Karloman (d.880), Ludwig (d.882) and emperor Charles 'the Fat' (o.s.p.s.887). Arnulf (d.899), son of Karloman, succeeded as king, duke, and emperor. Stokvis MH 3:162.
Apart from the carolingians, this is hardly the actual sequence of rulers.\textsuperscript{45} It is more probable that during the weakening of the carolingian kingdom, Luitpold (d.907), margrave of Carinthia (Kärnten) and count of Bavaria assumed the governance of the duchy or more accurately the south-east of the kingdom. But before long the Salic emperors changed the game and awarded the ducal title to a bewildering succession of names, at first to members of their family, then to several men from various families and from 1070 to the Welfs.\textsuperscript{46} Luitpold and the Luitpoldiner were ancestors in the male line of the Gf.Scheyern and Wittelsbach. Of the three sons of Otto (II, d.c.1080), the line of Otto (III) of Scheyern became extinct by 1128, that of Arnulf (III) continued as counts of Dachau and of Vallei, while Eckhardt (I, d.c.1091) had a son Otto (V, d.1155) count palatine of Bavaria c.1120, who by 1115 adopted the name Wittelsbach. One of his four sons, Otto (VI/I, d.1183), became the first Wittelsbacher duke of Bavaria in 1180.\textsuperscript{47}

So Jörg Rugen demonstrates a lack of knowledge of the actual successions, which is no wonder, as he did not have the modern researcher's access to chronicles, diplomas and seals. But he managed to establish logical claims to or explanations of the acquisition of Wasserburg and Andechs. However, Wasserburg am Inn was taken in 1255, and Andechs (Kr.Starnberg, OB) with Istria (on the Adriatic Sea) inherited in 1248.

Most of the arms in this subsegment are real (e.g. France, Lusignan, Andechs), some were at the time traditional imaginary ones (e.g. Charlemagne, Britain / king Arthur), while the arms of Wasserburg [3544] were transferred back from the town arms (still used) to the countly family said to have founded (and ruled) this prosperous merchant town. The arms of Scheyern and the (canting) boot added in the arms of Eckhardt 'mit dem Bundschuh' [3545] may well have been invented by Jörg Rugen. Apart from a variant of the arms of Eckhadt in Sieb Si2:2n3, the Scheyern arms were not found in any of the armorials or references used.

9.3 The Wittelsbachers
From page 292r on [292r-314v; 3552-3617; 66 items] the story only concerns the Wittelsbach family from the first Otto [3552], who acquired the office (and lands) of Pfalzgraf (count palatine) of Bavaria around 1120 and the duchy in 1180 on the downfall of Heinrich 'Löwe' in the struggle between the welfer duke and the stauffer emperor Friedrich 'Barbarossa', to Albrecht Bp.Strasbourg \textsuperscript{45} See pedigrees in Stokvis MH 3:162-169 and ESNF 1.1:90-114.

\textsuperscript{46} Stokvis MH 3:168.
\textsuperscript{47} The actual lineage of Scheyern is different from that of Jörg Rugen, see ESNF 1.1:90.
All male members bore the titles of PfGf.Rhein & Hz.Bayern, though only the pfalzer (palatine) line ruled in the palatine lands. The various bavarian lines were designated by regions (e.g. Oberbayern, Oberpfalz), and later by their seats, e.g. Landshut, Straubing, Ingolstadt or München. The older line of Lower Bavaria from Heinrich (I, d.1290), a brother of Ludwig (II) [3558], to Johan (I, d.1340) was not included by Jörg Rugen. Similarly, he omitted some of the sons of emperor Ludwig IV 'the Bavarian' [3560] and also the son and grandson of Rudolf, the first count palatine of the Rhine, only resuming this subline when the great grandson Ruprecht [3589] was elected king of the Romans in 1400. His sequences of the family members are comparable to the modern description apart from this and other omissions of additional sons, but there are many mistakes among their wives.

The arms in this subsegment appear to be mostly correct, perhaps with a few construed combinations of real arms and apart from those combinations incorporating the arms of Scheyern.

The above name of this group of armorials refers to the geographical area of their manufacture. The group has also been known by the name of prominent members, e.g. the Ingeram or the Miltenberg group. The features that most members examined have in common are the almost universal grouping of arms according to rank, e.g. kings, dukes, counts, barons (Freiherren) and knights; for some a semi-regional structure based on tournament societies; a group of legendary, but real, arms of nobles and towns by fours called the Quaternionen; and one or more groups of imaginary arms of fabulous kingdoms, heroes and other legendary personalities, extracted from medieval chansons de geste and traveller’s novels. A part of the imaginary arms have a substructure of three (Ternionen).

In contrast to what is the case in England and partly in France, where a large number of armorials can be found in several later copies, most surviving german armorials are in their ‘original’ form, usually in very derelict condition and have had their sequence broken by reorganisation.

The armorials, painted during the 15th century, can be divided into 3 subgroups according to the period of manufacture. They are listed below with an approximate year of manufacture, a sigla, the total number of items in each armorial, and a short comment. Further armorials might belong to this group. Not noted here is the reuse of certain woodblocks for prestamping the outlines of the shields, helmets and mantling.

The number of common items can be calculated in various ways, so the ‘real’ number will vary according to the method used. For the papers by Clemmensen, a common item belongs to one family or has been assigned to a ‘family’ of imaginary arms (e.g. the empire or kingdom of ‘India’), but may include ‘pairs’ of single and quartered arms, parent and differenced arms and arms with different crests and, of course, different renderings of colours and figures. The concordance

1 Many of the marker coats-of-arms can be found in other southern german armorials, mostly of later date, e.g. Vigil Raber's Neustifter Wappenbuch (VRN, c.1540); Ortenburg WB (ORT, 1466-73); Wernigerode WB / cod.icon.308a (WER, 1491); London, Society of Antiquaries, ms.373 WB Franks (FRA, c.1540); and the french Charolais (CHA, 1658), a copy from various older manuscripts.

Reference to Clemmensen OM indicates that the items of the armorial is included in the ordinary with blazon and a preliminary identification. A print or file can be made available on request. Other references are to proper critical editions.
has been established by computerized comparisons of the assignments to families with recurrent items being generally ignored. The dates of the manufacture of the armorials, all presumed to be original compositions, are as presently determined. Details will be found in the comments to the individual armorials and items. At least 1205 of the 2300 items (arms and banners) in GRU (from 1483) can be found in one or more of the armorials listed below.

Richental’s chronicle of the Council of Constance 1414-1418, 1420-1440, KCR, 1206 items; there are 5 manuscripts, 2 early prints and several printed extracts, no mention of tournament societies, facsimiles of Sorg 1483 (vs.D), ms.K and ms.P published and/or on the Internet; Clemmensen KCR.

Donaueschingen, c.1460, not 1433, DWF, 1094 items; 1 manuscript, pages lost, restored, many items severely damaged, - Clemmensen DWF.

Uffenbach, probably c.1440/60, but might be earlier, UFF, 593 items; 1 manuscript, disordered and derelict, no mention of tournament societies, no quaternionen, facsimile published in microfiche with comments (Paravicini UFF); Clemmensen UFF.

Stuttgarter WB, 1446, STU, 531 items; 1 manuscript, reasonably well preserved, probably in correct sequence, no mention of tournament societies, no quaternionen, no facsimile published; Clemmensen STU.

Wiener WB 8769, 1450-1460, WNW, c.600 items; 1 manuscript, no details; not published.

Hans Burggraf’s Wappenbuch, 1447, HBG, c.600 items; 1 manuscript, not published.

Ingeram, 1459, ING, 1100 items; 1 manuscript, possibly of 2-3 armorials, well preserved, each part probably in sequence, facsimile published with identifications (Becher ING, Waldstein ING); Clemmensen OM.

Berliner WB, 1460, BLW, 2 manuscripts, BLW/a and the enlarged copy BLW/b or Puchberg WB. BLW/a has 951 items; restored, probably in correct sequence, no imaginary arms, no quaternionen, facsimile with identifications awaiting publication (Müller-Westphal BLW); Clemmensen OM.

WB in Germanische Museum Nürnberg, c.1470, GMW, c.600 items; 1 manuscript, no details; not published.

St. Gallen Haggenbach, 1470, SGH, 1611 items; well preserved, sequence reshuffled, use of woodblocks from ING a.o., published in facsimile on the Internet; Clemmensen SGH.

Eichstädter WB, 1474-1478, EIC, c.2000 items; 1 manuscript, condition unknown; probably in correct sequence; not published.

Conrad Grünenberg, 1483, GRU, 2301 items; 2 manuscripts in good condition, ms.A (Berlin) disordered, ms.B (München) in original sequence; facsimile of ms.A published (Stilfried GRU, Popoff GRU, a.o.) and ms.B available in b/w on the Internet; Popoff GRU; Clemmensen GRU.

Ansbacher WB, 1485-1490, ANS, c.750 items; 1 manuscript, no details; not published.

Miltenberg, 1490, MIL, 1600 items; 1 manuscript, well preserved, probably in sequence, published with photos (mostly b/w) and identifications and analysis; Loutsch MIL; Clemmensen OM..

Jörg Rugen, 1499-1503, RUG, 3619 items; 1 manuscript, present paper.

App. E  Portraits of Jörg Rügen al. Georg Rüxner

"Ich heist Jörg Rügen perssosuant .."
Wien, ÖNB, ms.2936, Pt.2, fo. 11v.
Dated c.1495, unknown artist, but the text is in his autograph.

The Reichsherold Jerusalem in a woodcut by Hans Burgkmair dated 1504. BGH 167 fig.103.
The coat-of-arms is that of Jörg Rügen on fo.1r, and on the tabard the cross of Jerusalem as emblem of office.
The lozengy pattern is probably the argent-azure of Bavaria / Wittelbach.

Portrait of a herald in an armorial once owned by Otto Hupp, then titled "Wappenbuch eines bayerischen Herolds", dated 1520. BGH 162, 165, fig. 101.
The arms on the tabard are Jerusalem modified on Bavaria, and on the shield Swabia quatering Bavaria, Franconia and the Rhine palatinate.

decrescent acc. estoile sn

Melchior of Arabia & Nubia or of Saba, died in Armenia on January 1st year 54 at the age of 116. With Balthazar [5] and Melchior [6] the three magi and astrologers, who travelled to Bethlehem to adore the newborn Jesus. The feast of the 'three holy kings' on Twelfth Night, when Balthazar died at the age of 112 in the year 54, is the traditional end of the Christmas festivities. They were especially worshipped in Köln, to where their remains were transferred from Milano by emperor Friederich Barbarossa in 1164. Their bones were 'discovered' by Helena, mother of emperor Constantin the Great around 325 and placed first in the Hagia Sophia in Constantinople, then transferred to Milano by St.Eustorgius. The legend has that they gave their wealth to the poor and travelled preaching the Gospel, but were only baptised around year 40 by St.Thomas in India. Their three crowns are placed in the chief of the arms of Reichstadt Köln.

The top legend reads: 'Dis sind die drey heilligen dreykönig und erzbischoff in den drey indyen". Crown above all shields.

The arms might be attributed to either of the three magi varies between armorials and murals - probably due to copying mistakes propagated by succeeding copyists.

25 prester johann
A OG lion holding cross formy
One of several arms attributed to Prester John, a mythical priest-king of the Orient or far-away India, sometime named as father of king David alias Gengis Khan; in later Middle Age his India was moved to Ethiopia. As the patriarch Johannes, he was reported with pope Calixtus II in 1122 in Rome; and he is mentioned as having written a letter in 1165 to Manuel Comnenus emperor of Byzans, but this is a forgery (possibly from the court of Frederick Barbarossa) and was anti-byzantine in content. The letter was answered by pope Alexander IV. He is described firstly by Bishop Otto of Freising, in his Chronicon (1145) from talks with the bishop of Gabula/Gebal in Anthiochia, and by Vincent of Beauvais (Seymour JM xv) and many medieval authors;
Emended, here the lion holds a simple latin cross, but in MIL:150, this is a cross formy.

Arms of Sverige / Sweden / Suede, also known as Svea vapen, generally assumed introduced by the mecklenburger Albrecht (d.1412; r.1463-1389). Albrecht was deposed by the swedish nobility supported by Margrethe queen of Danmark and by 1397 in union with Denmark and Norway with Erik 'pomeranian', r.1387/1412-1439 as VII of Denmark / XIII of Sweden.

However, recent research has shown that these arms were painted on a mural in a palace in Avignon c.1335. The placing indicate that this is the arms of a realm and not of king Arthur or a magi.

The Vogt or BGf. Meissen (Kr. Meissen-Radebul, Sachsen), extinct 1426 in the senior line, when the office went to Heinrich von Plauen. This is one of 4 secondary arms placed for the Kf.Sachsen & Mgft.Meissen in MIL:231 and found on seals from 1266 to 1389. A saltire was also used for the Vogt von Meissen in KCR:678 a.o. Both versions were probably taken from a common written source, the cross being a misreading, possibly reinforced by the emblem of the Deutsche Order of which Heinrich von Plauen was Hochmeister after Tannenberg. The BGf.Neuenburg in Sachsen, a cadet of this family, used identical arms (Sieb 21/6.6:115+75).

His argument is based on the 1381 seal {checky & border} for Gérard du Puy, d.1389, a nephew of pope Gregor XI (Beaufort), Ab.Marmoutier and cardinal S.Clemente (1375) in XSV:136. The cardinal was born at Château du Puy (cne Rosiers-d'Egletons, dep Corrèze). Du Chesne gives him the Beaufort arms impaling Az cross Ar (Miranda C). An unusual combination with Q1 being the family arms [3424] of Johan von Kanisz / Janos Kanizai, d.1418 in Konstanz, vicechancellor of the University of Padua 1377, chaplain of Sigismund before being elected Bp.Erlau 1384, Abp.Esztergom (Strigonien., Gran, Hungary) 1387, Erzkanzler and Reichsvikar in Hungary, leading member of the 50 baronial families of Hungary. Q2 is the arms of the Anjou kings of Hungary, unlikely to be the arms of an archdiocese.

The arms of the Hungarian archdiocese of Kalocza-Bacs or Colocensis has not been found. Q1 is very close to one of the two royal coats-of-arms. During the period Stefan Varday (r.1456-71) and Peter Varadi (r.1480-1501) served as archbishops.

Q1 was used by Richard Clifford, d.1421, Bp.London (Londonien, England) 1407. Formerly of Bath & Wells and of Worcester, Keeper of the Privy Seal 1388-1402. Member of the Conclave for the English Nation and a candidate for the papacy. His seal has two small shields, dx with {checky & fess ch. mitre & border} for baronial family Clifford, and sn with {3 eagles acc. fleur-de-lis in chf}, presumably for London, which is currently and were then {Gu 2 swords in saltire Ar}. VSW:40 has the legend 'lundê i galice', which is non-existent. The arms in KCR and as second shield on his seal is similar to the arms of Cliffords of Durham (WJ:427), but no family connection is known.

Thomas Savage, Bp.London 1496-1501, used the present arms of 2 swords in saltire in his seal (XBM:1934).

Q2 is unknown.

Q1 is the family arms of Robert Hallum, d.1417, Bp.Salisbury (Saresberien., England) 1408, buried at Konstanz. His arms are on fo.352 of the Sherborne Missal. The diocese often used {Virgin Mary with child sn and fleur-de-lis} on its seals.

Q1 is the arms attributed by Richental in KCR:343 to Ludovius de Haricuria or Louis d'Harcourt, 1382-1422, Abp. Rouen (Rothomagen.; Normandy, France) 1409-21, but Q1 was not his family arms, which were {Gu 2 bars Or}. Q1 is repeated with a different legend in [3114].

A repeat of the arms of Sweden (Svea vapen), in the Danish royal arms of today representing the Union of Denmark, Sweden and Norway, see [46]. The arms were used from c.1330 and the eldest representation can be found in the great hall of Livrée Viviers, a former cardinal’s palace in Avignon. V.A. Sägerlund: “Sveriges lilla riksvapen i Avignon - nya rön”, Heraldisk Tidsskrift, 2013, no.107;

BEL:111* (semy of hearts);
The Danish national flag Dannebrog entered for the duchy of Stormarn, which had {Gu swan Ar gorged with crown Or}. The duchy was incorporated into Holsten 1474 and as a royal dominion in 1496. The flag was also entred as such in GEL:548bis and BEL:112.

Arms attributed to the island of Gotland in the Baltic Sea off Sweden. The island belonged to Denmark 1361-1645 and used an Agnus Dei like coat-of-arms with a ram and banner. Probably inspired by the golden dragon or wyvern on a blue and later red field representing the title 'de venders konge' or rex Vandalorum, king of the slavs in Wenden, assumed firstly by the Danish king Knud IV/VI (d.1202), but with arms firstly adopted by Christopher III 'the Bavarian' of the maison Wittelsbach in 1440. The similar title of kings of the Goths was used by the kings of Denmark until 1972 and represented by {Or lion passat Az above 9 hearts Gu}.

Gf.Holsten a.k.a. Nordalbingia, i.e. north of the Elbe, a county of the HRR of which the kings of Denmark from time to time claimed sovereignty. The county (later a duchy) was often paired with the danish duchy of Schleswig, and the pair at times divided between the Gottorp cadet lines and the main royal line - as well as ruled by Gf.Holsten. There were several version of the arms: a border engrailed, nettleleaf and a combination with 3 nails.

Arms attributed to some (non-existing) lordship on the slavonic speaking Baltic coast. Similar arms are entered for Slavonia in [605, 772]. The arms of king Hans did not have griffins in it.

Arms of Oldenborg, the danish royal family from 1448 to 1863, with a blood line going back to danish kings from before written records in Denmark and going on to the present day. See also [237] for the family as german counts of Oldenburg-Delmenhorst.

Arms attributed to the county of Delmenhorst, the proper arms, used from 1531 as a quarter, were {Az cross Or}. The present arms are confounded and probably copied from a KCR clone, and originally mistaken for the nettleleaf of Holsten, e.g. KCR:624Q1 and GRU:450Q1.

Arms of England, as used c.1408-1603, and with Q1+4 flory from 1340, see [173]. Edward IV (York-Plantagenet) reigned 1461-1483. His son, Edward V, was murdered before being crowned, and Edward's brother Richard III (r.1483-1485) took over. After a short civil war the crown went to Henry VII (Tudor, r.1485-1509), only a blood relation to the Plantagenets through a legitimated, but royally disinherited, line 4 generations back. Henry VII married Elizabeth, a daughter of Edward IV and later mother of Henry VIII (r.1509-1547). Quarters reversed.

Arms of Navarre qtg Evreux. The Navarre chains were adopted after the battle of las Navas de Tolosa 1212, as symbols of the golden chains around the maurian king's tent. Navarre came to the maison Champagne in 1234, and then to the capetian royal house of France until the death of Charles IV in 1328, when it went to his cognatic heir the maison d'Evreux (ruled until 1425), while France itself came to the Valois branch. The Evreux heiress Blanche married Juan II (Aragon, d.1479) who became king of Navarre in 1425, and of Aragon 1458. Her younger sister Lenore married Gaston (IV) C.Foix and her descendant Catherine married Jean (II) d'Albret C.Foix & R.Navarre (d.1516), but the spanish parts south of the Pyrenées was annexed 1512.

Arms attributed to Ibernia, which might refer to either Ireland or Scotland, by Ulrich Richental in KCR. Actually the arms of the Schottenkloster zu St. Jacob in Regensburg and the Schottenkloster in Erfurt, both benedictine institutions. Two of a series of benedictine monasteries, primarily with monks of Irish-scottish descent, founded by Marianus in 1070 in Regensburg, in patronate of emperor Heinrich IV in 1087, and supported with money from Ireland in 1112 for the first St. Jacob Monastery. The arms are found on a seal of 1409. There was a Schottklöster in Konstanz by 1142. Used by Richental as the arms of the ancient people, the scots, who seized Caledonia (modern Scotland) from the picts, e.g. the legends for fabulous kings for 'le roi vensaus en hirlande', 'enbernias in schotten'.

His emblem was the ancient imperial crown of 8 jewelled and enamelled plates in the circlet and a single crested arch fronted by a jeweled cross. The crown is sometimes noted as that of Charlemagne, but was actually made for Konrad II, r.1024-1039. The office and emblem came to Hannover in 1692, and was part of the royal arms of the hanoveranian kings of England.

Rene (II), d.1508, D.Lorraine & (titular) king of Sicily &c, was son of Yolande d'Anjou (d.1483) and Ferri (III) de Vaudemont, and grandson of Rene (I).

Rene (I) d'Anjou dit 'le bon roi', 1409-1480, married Isabelle, heiress to Lorraine in 1420 and succeeded in 1430. He was captured and imprisoned for 5 years by Philippe 'bon' D.Bourgogne after a short war of succession to Bar. In 1435 he succeeded his brother Louis (II) as D.Anjou and by 1438 inherited the kingdom of Sicily with its title to Jerusalem, but was unable to occupy his throne. In his later years, he retired to his county of Provence writing and collecting books.

The composite arms of Rene (I) were widely entered into contemporary armorials and placed on and in buildings as well. In this version a top row of Jerusalem, Anjou-ancien and Hungary, and a bottom row of Anjou-jeune, Lorraine (less the eaglets) and Bar (less the crusily).

GRU:470*;
Arms not appropriate to C. Montbéliard al. Mömpelgard, dep. Doubs. The proper arms {Gu 2 barbels addorsed Ar} arms were derived from those of the counts of Bar & Mousson, which family held the county until 1162, when it came to the Montfaucon family, which held it until 1282 and again from 1332 to 1397, when it finally came to Württemberg by marriage.

The present coat-of-arms, {Gu eagle Ar}, was also attributed to Montbéliard for Renaud de Bourgogne (Vienne), d.1321, count 1282 in right of his wife Guillelmette de Neuchâtel, heiress of Montbéliard.

Arms: tricked Gu-Or.

The ruler of the central part of Rascia, i.e. the despotate of Epirus with the capital Arta, was the albanian Yaqub Spata lord of Arta, r.1414-16. The origin of the despotate was those byzantian provinces on the adriatic coast and central Greece, which was not conquered by the latin empire established in 1204 during the 4th Crusade. The title of despot was a high non-hereditary rank conferred by the byzantine emperor and usually restricted to members of the imperial family given large landed appanages. Parts of the despotate of Epirus was seeded to Napoli-Sicilia on the marriage
c.1294 of Thamar of Epirus and Philippe d'Anjou P.Tarento, and incorporated into the title of Johanna Q.Napoli as Ravie or Rascie Regina. Parts were temporarily in the hands of Stephan IV Dusan of Serbia (r.1331-55), who used the title emperor of Rascia and Romania, despot of Arta and count of Thessaly" in 1349. He was partially succed by Carlo Tocco C.Cephalonia (d.1429) and by the serb, Djuradj Vukovic, 1375-1456, hungarian magnate in 1426, knez 1427, 1428 duke-despot of

Probably copied from KCR manuscript, referring to Johan (II) Bucca, Bp.Olmuzt. The arms of the diocese are similar, but in Gu-Ar. The KCR vs.D legend notes that the 'hertzog von orliens' came with 3 knights and 20 horses. However, Charles D.Orleans was not present, being taken prisoner at Azincourt in 1415. The arms are nearly identical to the anonymous arms in REV:498 of a family in village of Souvigny in Bourbonsais with a well-known priory.

Friedrich (II), 1480–1542, Hz.Liegnitz, succeeded 1488, a subcadet line of the dukes of Silesia of the polish royal family of the Piast. His father, Friedrich (I) was Hz.Liegnitz & Brieg, but his younger brother Georg (1481–1521) inherited Brieg.
These arms are a variant of those in common use by the silesian princes, but though named for Liegnitz by Konrad Grünenberg and used by the Hz.Brieg, they were not probably not used by the Liegnitz line. The 'crescent-cross' was usually seen for the Oels or Olesnica dukes, another subcadet line, extinct 1492, while the Liegnitzer had the qtd arms {checky; eagle per pale; *= AG, OX-GS} in GEL:508 and derived armorials.

Frauenberg zu Hag, bavarian Uradel with seat 1246-1331 at Haag (Kr. Wasserburg, OPf.) and from 1311 at Prunn (Kr. Riedenburg, OPf.). One branch extinct 1567, another 1630. The Frauenbergs were quartered as Ritter or R-ErbRitter, and used two arms, this the canting of Gurre von Hag, the other being Gu pale Ar.

von Pflug von Rabenstein, had their holdings in the borderlands between Böhmen and Oberpfalz, e.g. in Waldmünchen.

Fhr. von Degenberg, Fhr. 1465, extinct 1602. The present arms, later qtd by von Closen, were at first probably only a crest used with a crequier or Lindenbaum as figure of arms. Same figure in arms as crest.

von Eisenhof, extinct 1515, lands in Kr. Weissenburg.

Sigismund von Schwarzenstein. The family held Engelburg (Ger. Passau). By 1556 Ernst v.S.Z.E. quartered the arms with Mautner zu Katzenberg [1668]. Repeat of Schwarzenstein, see [1314].
Bernhard Jörger zu Reuth, son of Christof Jörger [1684]. Repeat of Jörger [1684].

The medieval Jörger had two lieues from 1350, of which the older became extinct in 1557, and the younger used different names (Wolfgang, Helmhart, Ulrich). No details on the older line is available.

From the younger line, who acquired Reuth on the marriage of Hildeprand Jörger and Benigna Anhanger, the most probable, but too late, series would begin with his son Wolfgang (II) zu Tolet & Reuth &c (d.1524 in old age), who defended Wiener Neustadt in 1486. He was married to Dorethea Raming (d.1513) and had Christof, who had a son Bernhard (d.1593).

Johan Zenger von Trausnitz was brother-in-law of Kaspar Thurn, who in 1472 married Barbara Preysing von Wolnzach. This is a little too late for Kaspar and Barbara to be the grandparents in [1699, 1700] of this Johan.

188r1 lion with human face: =; = (GA, SO) 29
crown G bust of man
Probably a later display showing the four ancestors of doctor Ludwig Fröschl von Marzoll. The dexter half might be a partial repeat of 187v [1793-1802] with Wiguleus Bp.Passau [1805] and his parents Ludwig [1803] and Ursula Trenbach [1806]. However, the two tirolean items on the sinister side can be read as the mother and maternal grandmother of another Ludwig, grandson of Ludwig and Ursula and nephew of Wiguleus Bp.Passau. If so, this item is for an anonymous brother of Wiguleus.
Arms & crest: the head in Q1 is different from [1796]. The 2nd crest has the frog on wings. Repeat of Fröschl von Martzel / Marzoll, see [1794].

Arms of the Marshall family, hereditary marshals of England since the end of the civil war of 1136-1154, when the office was invested with the descendants of John FitzGilbert, marshal of Marlborough, e.g. William Marshal, d.1219, E.Pembroke and Justiciar of England, a renowned jouter. The line became extinct in 1245, and the office went to the family of the senior brother-in-law Hugh Bigod. Roger Bigod (o.s.p.1306), his grandson, adopted the arms of Marshall.

Above this row is the text: 'her nach stand die xij. fürsten von england'. The legend must refer to Bigod.

Not identified. Probably copied from a misplaced repeat of the legend for Albrecht P.Anhalt (KCR:676) over an unidentified coat of arms.

In most KCR manuscripts and in GRU as {pale betw 2 fleurs-de-lis; 2 bars; =; cock}. The thin red pale and the similarly thin red horizontal line between Q1-2 and Q3-4 are probably partition lines. KCR ms.K has Q2+3 as 2 bars. The Q4 field is uncoloured in the KCR mss, but Az in GRU. Q1 is very like della Luna of Verona (Rolland 4:103). GRU:552*; KCR:679* (qtd);

Probably Corrado (II) de Caretto, d.c.1452, diplomat and administrator, both in the service of D.Milano and as podesta of Verona 1404 and Genoa 1409-1412. His brother Oddonino was governor of Piacenza in 1414, and his cousin Bonifacio (II) M.Savona & S.Millesimo. The family built Castello Gavone in Finale Ligure (provincia Savona) W.of.Genoa in 1181 and held the area as a marquisate until 1385, when forced to cede most of it to Genoa. Several members served the M.Montferrat as high-ranking officers and councillors.

He married Barbara, the daughter of Andres Ozorai, with lands in Tolnauer komitat and acquired more lands in Temesvár komitat. The item must be copied from KCR.

Stibor z Stiboricz al. Scibor z Sciborzyce, voevod of Transsylvania 1410-14, an important official of emperor Sigismund. The arms are probably extracted from KCR, and are the crest of Ostoja qtg the hrb of Ostoja. The arms or hrb of Ostoja and Moscic are identical. Both clans have been named as parents of Scibor, viz.: Stibor Bp. Eger 1410-20 from Ostoja, and Moscic of Male Sciborzyce or Moscic of Chocen 1433 for the arms in ETO:921. Q1 has a single crescent only with wolf's head.

Juan de Aragon-Irraura, probably extracted from KCR. Aragon qtg Navarre, but drawn with 2 pales in Q1.
Lucas de Fieschi, noted as a roman in KCR, but probably from Genoa as was his relative Ludovico cardinal Fieschi. The family had 2 popes in the 13C: Innocens IV and Hadrian V.

Alberto de Scotti, from Piacenza in Lombardia. From 1290 until evicted by the Viscontis of Milano in 1316, an ancestor Alberto Scotti was lord of Piacenza with a castle, Castell’Arquato, 30 km from Piacenza, and others at Rocca Anguissola and Rocca di Agassano. Later the family served the Gonzagas.

The Scotti arms were recorded as {Or chicot flory per pale Az} in MIL:1419, UFF:446 and by Petra Sancta 483, while Crollalanza DH 1:370 + 2:514, VIS:321n7 and Rolland 5:265 has Douglas-Scotti, same family as Alberto Scotti, as {Az bend Ar acc. 2 mullets Or}.

Not identified. Nicolo marchese Villateri according to Dacher L 35, de Ralencery in Justinger's chronicle or de Valleri, a roman marchese, according to the legend. He was in the service of the genovese Ludovico cardinal Fieschi [135]. A Valleri from Parma, arms unknown, was created conte di Berganzola 1435 by the Viscontis of Milano (Crollalanza DH 3:65). Other Valleri arms are in VIS:363b, 364g and 369g.

The chronicle of the rulers of Bavaria from the beginning to Albrecht bishop of Strassburg

3461 lampedonam

A B A unicorn gorged 42
Lampeto al. Lampedona, a female captain of the scythian amazons.

Most of the pages in this segment have a considerable amount of text as do most items. The text and the legends have been abbreviated to the bare essentials. As an example, this item reads: "diss ist das wappen lampedonam der herfürerin ein kongin der scithischen weiber amezones zo genemt wonend zwischend den scithiern unnd albanieren ain fürstin des klainern assia etc".

Pages 263r-264v are blank (prestamped with RUG-A) and on pages 265r-267r begin a chronicle of the rulers of Bavaria with an amazon, her lover and their son. The narrative begins with a dedication: "Dem dürchlegten hochgeborender fürstenn unnd hern hern jörgen palczgrafen beÿ rein herzogen im nidern und obern pairnm, ...".

Index Armorum

Part 2, composite arms, blazons by 1st quarter

:E: inescutcheon; :: over all (label, bend, cross separating quarters); :dim: dimidated;

Arms of the dukes of Bavaria in the chronicle [3461-3617] are omitted, the fictitious ancestors are not named in this ordinary, and some spouses are only named as wife.

'Greek' dukes have 180 of the composite arms listed here [3225-3404], dioceses, real and fictitious, are another source of composite arms.
