1. Introduction

The armorial commonly known as Gorrevod from the name of one of its owners appears to be relatively unique among the large composite armorials of the late Middle Ages.¹ Superficially, it looks like contemporary painted armorials and like them is made up of distinct segments each containing either a number of coats of arms of similar type, e.g. from a specific territory, selected from holders of a particular noble rank, or imaginary persons or countries; and/or text discussing history, geography or theory related to the office of arms, tournaments and other ceremonials. Many, if not most, of the manuscripts of composite armorials can be assigned to distinct, but often overlapping groups as copies, clones or satellites according to the extent and form of common content. Six groups have recently been analyzed and defined.² Like four of these groups, the Gorrevod has a majority of items from present France, Belgium and the Netherlands and their neighbouring parts of Germany, but it does not belong to either of these groups. Though the Gorrevod has been retained among the composite armorials, it has many of the characteristics of a general or universal armorial and could even be classified as a local armorial.

It is obvious from just a flipping through the manuscript that it has a close connection to the medieval duchy of Brabant-Limbourg. A territory which is now divided between the Dutch province of Noord-Brabant (with Breda and s'Hertogenbosch / Bois-le-Duc) and the Belgian provinces of (southern) Brabant (with Antwerp and Bruxelles) and Limbourg as well as the Dutch enclave of Limburg around Maastricht. The Gorrevod does have segments with titled nobles listed by rank and imaginary arms, but the two unusual elements are the long list of arms attributed to towns and the many commoners, which fill several segments. Many of these armiger families have not been identified or verified, but those that have been identified often held scabinal positions in Brabantian towns.

The present publication presents a transcription of arms and crests with preliminary identification of the families and a few notes.³ The analysis is focused on dividing and defining the various parts according to layout and content. Periods of collation and execution are also noted. The comments and references included with the individual items are those readily available in the author's database and included almost unedited as a guide for the reader.

2. The manuscripts

There are three manuscripts to be considered, the principal 15th century named Gorrevod; one contemporary manuscript, which may have been a part of the former; and one later work based on the principal one.

2.1 The principal manuscript

The principal manuscript is the one presently held in Bruxelles in the Bibliothèque royale de Belgique (KBR) as II.6563 (GOR) was in bad condition before the restoration in 2004. Ink and water-colours are very pale and hard to read. Some arms were found under strips of paper. Other items were glued on to the primary pages. There are a number of odd sized leaves in the manuscript.

The manuscript is on paper, 225 x 155 mm (A5+, some pages cut, quires slightly variable in dimensions) on 121 leaves.⁴ There are several, mostly partial, paginations; the (modern) one used here has the sequence 18 unnumbered and 220 pages with arabic numbers in black ink on the outside top of the pages. Bergen-Pantens used a foliation made during restoration, but not visible in the facsimile. The leaves are folded sheets gathered into 21 quires of irregular size.⁵ It is considered to consist of two co-bound parts: the first part has the 18 unnumbered pages, the second the 220 numbered pages. The paper used was obtained in small batches over the years, possibly indication that the work was carried out periodically. The 17 watermarks found centre on two periods 1420-43 (median 1434) and 1443-57 (median 1452). The leaves making up fo.110-119 were probably slightly older, 1430/35.⁶

The review of the codicology is based on the papers by Christiane van den Bergen-Pantens. The watermarks were evaluated by Martin Wittek (Bergen-Pantens AG 238-239, GD 810n13). Any different interpretation is marked as such and based on examination of the manuscript and facsimiles.

The manuscript has two diverse parts: the first, GOR part 1, consist of the 10 leaves (fo.1-10) in quire I, which appears to have two subparts: fo.1-2 with ex-libris and a glued-on fragment from another armorial; and fo.3-10 with various written texts (treatise, names, blazons). The last page (fo.10v alias page 1) with painted arms has been assigned to the main division, GOR part 2.⁷ The painted arms in this part have been divided into 47 segments according to content, style and layout. Some segments cover more than one quire. Part 2 includes a short text element, a chronicle of the dukes of Brabant.

There are 1627 numbered arms and a number of unnumbered items, mainly painted ex-libris and glued-on items.⁸ Except for items #7-143, which are in French blazon, all coats of arms are painted free-hand in water colour.⁹ A few appear to be later alterations (or additions). The arms are entered in various layouts. The majority has inclined shields and crested helmets and are placed in 2x2 (J) or 3x2 (K) layouts. Those items without crests are mostly placed upright in a 3x4 layout (C). There is also a short written treatise and a substantial number of names only and blazoned arms.

Two scribes did most of the writing: hand A, which is similar to the scripts used in the priories of Rouge-Cloître and Groenendael near Bruxelles, Bethléem (Louvain) and in the ducal chancellery, is used for the legends, and hand B for the treatise in French (3r-4v). Several of the faded legends were later retouched in black ink.

The principal artisan, painter A, did exquisite artwork, especially on the crests, with e.g. very realistic human faces. The style of helmets and the elaboration of mantling vary greatly within one segment and/or quire. The most common type of helmet is the tilting with a slightly pointed lower lip. There are variants with very pointed lips, and a few grilled helmets, both ‘normal’, protruding and squashed grilles on a tilting base. A few helmets are ‘golden’ and/or have collared kleinods (Schaumünze). The mantling varies from short plain cloths to elaborate leafy decorations.

⁸ A number of papers published before 2019 have the 2003 numbering used in the de Boos transcription. There is a full concordance between the old (2003) and the new (2019) numeration in Appendix C.

There are short descriptions of the GOR by Paul Adam-Even in his Carnet no.44 deposited at the IRHS in Paris, and in Raneke BHM 83-84. GOR is noted there with 1490 items, less 143 i GOR part 1, almost exactly the same number of items as in the present paper. Bergen-Pantens GD 814-816 expands the summary in Raneke BHM 1:83-84, see Appendix B for the present update.

The rosettes, crosslets and briquets found adjacent to some arms in both GOR and GLS are probably mnemotechnical indications used for repetitive consultations.¹⁰

2.2 The secondary manuscripts

The first of the two related manuscripts, KBR, ms. IV.1301 (GLS), includes a number of leaves assumed to have belonged to the Gorrevod. The manuscript is of paper and of similar size, 225 x 173 mm (slightly broader), and has 11 loose leaves, which was co-bound by the former owner comte Thierry de Limburg-Stirum and kept in Château Huldenberg as Collection Limburg-Stirum, ms.148:227r-237v. This was bought by the KBR in 2007. The contents in facsimile have been printed in the order ff.227, 229, 230, 228, 231-237 in Helmont LS 7-30 (2004).

The 11 leaves can be grouped in 7 segments:

- 01: 227rv, 1-12, 3x2c (K), helmet A = tournament participants, <1439;
- 02: 229rv, 25-32 (8), 2x2c (J), helmet B
= mixed Low Countries;
- 03: 228rv, 230r-233v, 13-24, 33-80 (60), 3x2c (K), helmet C
= mixed Low Countries;
- 04: 234rv, 81-88 (8), 2x2c (J), helmet C
= GOR-type, Brabantians;
- 05: 235rv, 89-100, (12), 3x2c (K), helmet D
= mainly bourgeois from Malines-Antwerp;
- 06: 236rv, 101-112 (12), 3x2c (K), helmet E
= princes, copied from Nieuwenhoven (NHN);
- 07: 237rv, 113-124 (12), 3x2c (K), helmet F
= princes, GLS:124 changed to de Grez;

Vergy GLS:1 / GOR:305; Brimieu GLS:2 / GOR:308 are very close in style. The legends in segments 01, 02, 04 and part of 03 are similar to hand-A and in faded brownish ink. There are 6 helmet styles: A & C tilting, similar to GOR; B squashed grilled superimposed on tilting; D tilting, angular; E tilting, semi-circular; F tilting in courtesy. Types A-C appears to be the work of painter-A.¹¹ Types D-F are markedly different.

¹⁰ Bergen-Pantens GD 809.

¹¹ Bergen-Pantens GD 812.

The third manuscript, KBR, Goethals 695 (GOR/b), is later, dated 1649, and is basically a restructured partial copy of the Gorrevod made by Henri Butkens (d. >1652), prior of Oudenbourg 1628, later living in the Abbey of Vlierbeek in Kessel-Lo near Louvain. He was brother of Christophe, the noted antiquarian and genealogist, and himself author of genealogies. It is mentioned as 'Livre de cimiers' and as 'a copy of an armorial for Anton duke of Brabant 1384-1415' by F. V. Goethals (1799-1872).

It has on fo.1r '.. Antonio brabantiae et limburgi dux, obijt 1415' and also the arms of Eugenius IV (Condulmero), pope 1431-47. It has not been used for the present compilation.¹² There is an ex-libris like arms of de Grez on GLS:226v.¹³

3. Owners

The compiler-artist is anonymous, but we have certain characteristics of him. The obvious one is that he was born and worked in Brabant. He was probably a member on one of the patrician families, who was elected councillor-magistrates (scabini, schepen, échevins) in the towns, most likely from Louvain / Leuven, an important town with churches, monasteries and a university. He may have visited the Burgundian court, but was hardly a member of it. One would expect more courtiers and a better structured survey of its members. He probably had good relations with leading Brabantian members of the Church and affection for the Cistercian Order. He had highly developed artistic skills, able to draw fine details with a pen, but also able to paint arms with just a brush. He did not only have a deep interest in armory, but also some knowledge of it and of genealogy, and he must have had access to at least some fragments of armorials. Most his recordings are of contemporaries or people who had died within a few decades. He must have worked on this collection for years.

What could his occupation be? He was hardly a herald. One would expect a different structure and composition with more knights, if he was employed as such by one of the leading nobles. Many of the towns employed heralds, and Duke Philip 'le bon' was fond of using them as messengers and as a supplement to his own employees.¹⁴ But what use would a town herald have of the present collection? In any case, it was probably only a small part of the heralds, which were actively engaged in armory.¹⁵ Could he be professional illustrator, some of which were women? Probably not - it is again the selection of people and their arms that argues against it. A legal person would not be a better proposition. After all the negatives, and few indications, there remains either a secretary to a merchant or a noble with an interest in town politics, one of these, or lastly a wealthy burgher with excess time on his hands.

The established descendance of the manuscript begins with the 'Gorrevod exlibris'.¹⁶ Charles Emmanuel de Gorrevod (13.12.1569 - 4.11.1625) came from near Gorrevod in Bourg-en-Bresse (present France, dep Ain), became chevalier de la Toison d'or in 1613 (no.329, created by King Philip III of Spain), gentilhomme de la Chambre des gouverneurs des Pays-Bas Archiduc Albert and Isabelle, baron Gorrevod, duc de Pont-de-Vaux, prince of the Holy Empire, and served as governor of Limbourg 1620-24 and of the county of Namur in 1624. His wife Isabelle de Bourgogne (b. c.1600, d. 13.08.1650), daughter of Henri de Bourgogne C.Fallai, was a descendant of Baudouin, a bastard of Philippe 'le bon' duc de Bourgogne & C.Flandre &c (d.1461).¹⁷

This family had a long history of service in the Netherlands and the Houses of Habsburg and Bourgogne. His ancestor, a great grandfather?, Laurent de Gorrevod (d.1527/29), was a close councillor of Marguerite d'Autriche (1480-1530), daughter of emperor Maximilian I and Marie de Bourgogne, by marriage duchess of Savoy, when she governed the Spanish Netherlands 1507-30. She died in Malines / Mechelen, but was buried in Brou (dep Ain). Laurent had lands close to Brou, and is buried there. He served also as governor of Bresse 1504, ambassador to England and diplomat to emperor Charles V, became chevalier de la Toison d'or in 1516 (no.135) and comté de Pont-de-Vaux in 1521.¹⁸

Together with the Lyncenich, Nieuwenhouwen and other manuscripts it was owned by Jean Baptiste Houwaert (1626-1688), a bibliophile antiquarian and premier échevin of Bruxelles. From him it descended in the family until 1932, when the collection was bought by the KBR into the 'Fonds Houwaert'. It came first to his son-in-law Louis van Ursel (d.1727), Flanders king-of-arms, then through his daughter Marie to her husband Melchior de Grez (or van Grave) and their son Richard (d.1752) Hainaut king-of-arms, and grandson Jacques de Grez, Brabant king-of-arms, ¹⁵ Clemmensen EA 1:319-344.

¹⁶ The descendance of GOR from Gorrevod to the KBR is described in Bergen-Pantens GD 807-808. The exlibris does not include the arms of Gorrevod, Azure a chevron or.

¹⁷ The date of birth of Isabelle is unknown, but the marriage contract was signed in 1621, and she gave birth to thier eldest son, Charles Emmenuel, in 1623 (www, registry of papers in KBR).

¹⁸ Data on Laurent de Gorrevod from Wikipedia, retrieved 19.01.2019.

until it ended in the possession of Max Roberti de Winghe (d.1913) and was sold to the KBR by the heirs.

It is notable, and comparable to the situation in England, that for generations it was preserved in the hands of heralds, so it survived the War of Spanish Succession 1701-14 with bombardments and major fires in Bruxelles and Louvain, and also other wars with plundering in the area as well as transition from first Spanish to Austrian then to French, Dutch and Belgian governance. Other armorials did not, or went abroad, e.g. the Bergshammar was among the spoils of war taken to Sweden - either directly or through a seizure by French troops.

4. Nobles: lords and gentry

The term 'nobles' has a double meaning in the present context. Firstly, it refers to segments where titled nobles are listed according to rank, i.e. segments 13-22 for dukes and counts. Secondly, the continental term 'nobility' or 'Adel', i.e. all members of a noble family is split into lords: people (fathers, sons and close relatives) belonging to the group of magnates and major landowners, who have political clout and would likely been known outside their principal territory; and gentry: people with more modest holdings and mainly local influence, who may also have mercantile interests in the towns.¹⁹

4.1 Titled nobles

The listings of titled nobles are divided here into ten segments according to rank and layout. They are all small segments (6-12 items, one of 24 items) with segment 13 (6 counts) following what looks like a modified list of imperial electors on quire VII.²⁰ Segment 14 Dukes and 15 Counts begin on quire VIII and continue on quire IX, which also have segments 16-17, dukes in different layouts. On quire X come segments 18-19 of counts in different layouts and 20 Dukes.²¹ This 'programme' finishes with quire XI having ten unrelated dukes in courtesy in segment 21 and a dozen counts in segment 22. It appears impossible to refold the sheets into any meaningful 'super-segment' of titled nobles, so they have probably survived as when they were composed.

²⁰ The six 'counts' (#459-464) makes a curious selection: 2 Germans, 2 French, 1 non-count from Hainaut, 1 14C Flanders-cadet.

There are only five redundant titles, and as these are not systematic, it appears that the compiler simply added names and arms as they were picked from whatever sources, he could find. He did include a number of contemporaries or near contemporaries with distinctive arms, e.g. Philippe ‘le bon’, the effective ruler of the Low Countries; in segment 14 are his uncle Antoine D.Brabant killed 1415 at Agincourt, and the Duke of Juliers-Guelders (probably Reinold, r.1402-23); in segment 16 an early form of the arms of René d’Anjou as D.Bar (1431/34?);²² and in other segments are courtiers like Friedrich Gf.Mörs. The arms en face and in courtesy have no logical connection and are interspaced with territorial arms. The large ‘comital’ segment 15 has arms from all over Europe, including three Englishmen, who never came near that rank. It is nearly impossible to date these segments from the content, but they were probably added post 1434, when Jean de Bourgogne was created C.Etampes by Philippe ‘le bon’, though Charles VII gave that title to Richard, a brother of the D.Bretagne (#541).

4.2 Lords and gentry

It is not relevant to define any of the segments as all-lords or all-gentry. Of the six segments noted as predominantly noble, a large part of the 122 items in segment 07 appears to belong to lords, including a number of knights of the Golden Fleece (CTdO). Four segments (24, 37, 39, 41) have more gentry than lords. One short segment (40) appears to be all lords. There are several curiosities: #701 Philippe van Hoorn (1421-89, V.Furness &c), a famous joustier Pedro Vasquez (fl.1440) in #1275, and a Jean Flavy in #1356 rather than the more famous brothers Hector and Guillaume (d.1448). The latter captured Jeanne d’Arc, who was then turned over to the English to die a heretic on the stake. The Boxtel (Cuyck) in #259 and repeated in the glass window as #1135 appear to have been extinct around 1357 with the title going to Zuylen-Abcoude.

Nearly all items in these segments belong to different persons, only for Weyn van Mol (#1163, 1174, and 1346m in 37 and 41) and Gielis de Weert (#876, 1156, in 37 and 39) are the names doubled. However there are a couple of instances where variant arms could have been assigned to one person. Both lords and gentry, Brabantians as well as from other Burgundian territories can also be found in predominantly non-noble or foreign segments.

There is a curious display of ancestors on page 149 (85r), which is part of the 3-leaf quire XV. The structure is uncertain from the available information, but it appears that 83rv and 85rv are one sheet folded with 84rv (#1075-1097) inserted possibly with some other leaves. On fo.85r there are two sets of arms separated by a red vertical line. On each side there are two groups of four, one above and one below a central shield. The one on sinister impaled as the arms of a wife. At first sight the layout would seem to be for eight ancestors (one male and seven females) each of Jean de Gavre (d.1486, #1102), and his wife Marie von Schoonvorst (d.1473/74), though their parental arms are missing. It is not - that is, the top clusters have three parental ancestors of each and one apparently unrelated coat of arms. The bottom clusters have no direct relation to either family. The pair was married before 1456, and possibly by 1435 as her parents was married in 1400 and she was a younger child. The Gavre-Schoonvorst display may suggest that the compiler at one time was employed by a member of the Gavre family.

4.3 Manuscript IV.1301 GLS

Christiane van den Bergen-Pantens proposed that the first four segments of ms. IV.1301 (GLS) with 88 items were 'lost' fragments of the Gorrevod. The actual overlap is small, probably about than 10% even if minor difference in brisures are included, so her hypothesis is probable. The three shorter segments are almost all concerned with nobles as is the beginning of the larger GLS segment 03. The latter part includes a number of scabinal families.

GLS segment 01 on fo.227rv presents 12 jousts with their place numbers 16-27. They were all elected knights of the Order of the Golden Fleece (CTdO), so this extract or fragment may cover those CTdO who took part in this otherwise unknown tournament. If so, it took place between 1433 (election of Jean bâtard de Luxembourg a.o.) and 1436 (death of Jacques de Crevecoeur).

Most of the entries are of Brabantians or men in the service of the duc de Bourgogne, but there are a few curiosities in segment 03. GLS:24 is Branda di Castiglione (d.1443), a cardinal and papal legate to Hungary with close relations to the Holy Roman Emperor since the Council of Constance in 1414-18. GLS:16 is Pierre (II) de Brézé (1412-1465) a senior French official from 1437 during the reconquest of Normandy. GLS:20 is Adolf von Kleve in (1425-92), CTdO 1456 and a favourite nephew of Philippe 'le bon'. As can be seen, the periods does not support a continuous entering of observations. Later in the segment we find the arms of Carrara (GLS:37), an Italian prince deposed 1406, but with arms often entred into both German and French armorials.

5. Commoners

Most of the identifiable commoners belong to the Brabantian town patriciate. Families that repeatedly held scabinal positions in Louvain / Leuven, Bruxelles, Malines / Mechelen, Tirlemont / Tienen, Antwerp and a few other towns. Louvain is the most common one. There are seven segments (05, 06, 08, 25, 26, 32, and 38) which appear to be dominated by such commoners. Many of these are at present unidentified or unverified. There are nobles in all segments. Some are lords like Rotselaer (a principal magnate near Louvain, #197) and Dietrich van Borselen S.Zuijlen (d.1408, #200), others may have had interest in both spheres. The Dilft were échevins in Antwerp, but married into nobility and served magnates like the Boutersem and Polanen. Jan van Dilft S.Embise (j.u.) is noted as #179. His older brother Waleran co-sealed in 1428 with Ivan Cortenbach of the Teutonic Order (#224).

Segment 06, one of the three major segments in this group, is an example of the difficulties in determining the type of segment. It does have a number of identifiable échevins and a master of the Mint (#182) and as noted above many lords, but also a number of foreigners, e.g. Rudolf von Diepholz Bp.Utrecht 1424-55 (#220), a notable figure at the time, but more in Holland-Hainaut than in Brabant. It also has the Hochmeister of the Teutonic Order and the Gf.Holsten (#211-212), who at the time was very marginal outside his county. There is also an engaged pair, a married couple and a nun (#734, 745-746, 813). It is tempting to say that most of the pages were filled as the compiler met people or browsed tables of arms without much regard for the persons place in society or even 'nationality'. He may simply have added people from the same social strata by association, e.g. when remembering a number of other lords when adding a lord of Rotselaer to his collection.

6. Abbeyes and towns

The first set of abbots (segment 04) was probably added retrospectively on a blank end page of an unrelated quire. The four identifiable persons served in that ranks in three different periods: 1424/33, 1449/53, and post 1462. The other clergy, mostly abbots, is distributed among segments 05, 06, 08, and 23, 25, 26. They include David, a bastard of the D.Bourgogne, in the first step of his career (#395, 1439/51) closely placed with a papal legate; a local official of the Teutonic Order (#164) noted 1410/34; and Guillaume Fillastre (#235), a later bishop and chancellor, also at the beginning of his career during 1432/37 - but his father did occupy a high position at the time! Most of the abbots came from scabinal families.²³

Arms of towns are very rare in medieval armorials outside Germany. The present collection in segments 44 and 45 list 111 items in three different layouts. Nearly all are towns in present Belgium, but there is a sprinkling of Dutch towns and well-known foreign cities, e.g. Köln / Cologne, Basel, and Rome. The latter has added the arms and papal insignia of Eugenius IV Condulmero (r.1431-39/47, #1482). The following item is the arms of the county of Artois, which suggests that the two segments were compiled and executed within a short time. The second segment 45 is less well-structured than the first and includes a few noble or territorial arms, e.g. Melun (#1485), Friesland (#1486), and Hainaut-Holland (#1492). Boulogne (#1487) is given the gonfanon, which has no connection to the town, but was the arms of Auvergne adopted for the county on the marriage of Alix/Adela de Brabant Cs.Boulogne and Robert (V) C.Auvergne in 1260.

No attempt was made to evaluate the accuracy of the assignment of arms or compare them with seals, but at least the better known towns appear with arms in contemporary use.

7. Foreigners

Foreigners, mostly from neighbouring territories fill six segments (10, 27, and 43 Rhenish; 29 and 42 German; 30 French), and a further three (23, 28, 46) have a mix of Brabantians and foreigners. Segment 43 is slightly different having territorial titles, not personal or familial arms as such. The 'German' segments do have many Rhenish arms, but with families added from Hessen, Franconia, Bavaria and Swabia as well as the odd item: #1396 C.Foix from south-western France, #1403 della Scala (which actually settled in southern Germany at the time), #973 Isle of Man, and #956 la Roche-sur-l'Ognon, to which a later hand wrote 'duc d'athenes' as this Franc-Comtois family became lords of Thebes and Athens in Greece from the Fourth Crusade in 1204 until 1308 - another item culled from an unidentified source.

The 72 items in segment 30 begin with a bastard of Brabant and c. 30 arms from Bretagne (incl. a few from other parts), and end with some 40 from Central France, mainly Bourbon and Auvergne. It is worth considering that this selection served in one of the French campaigns in the borderlands or on the Calais or Norman frontier. #1010 is Prigent de Coëtivy (d.1450), created amiral de France 1439, and #996 his younger brother Oliver S.Taillebourg, seneschal de Guienne, who in 1458 married Marie a bastard daughter of Charles VII.

The first and largest of the 'mixed' segments, no.23, begin with three Milanese and continues with a large number of Brabantians interspaced with odd items: #576-579 a Holsten, an E.Warwick, a Bohemian Sternberg and a Silesian Troppau, as well as #567 Charles d'Albret, either Charles (d.1415) connétable de France 1403, or his son Charles (II, d.1471). #661, 663 are two more Englishmen (Greystoke and Basset), with #665 adding an unnamed Scot (Douglas with the heart of Bruce). The Burggraf von Nürnberg (#681) would by now be Elector of Brandenburg.

Segment 28 is similar, though with fewer odd items. It manages to include a Bohemian Zajic / Hasenburg (#891) and Philippe Pot (d.1494, #894) grand sénéchal de Bourgogne, whose magnificent in Citeaux is now in Louvre. Segment 46 is different, mainly Brabant, Holland and Zeeland with an unidentified Portuguese of royal blood (#1543) and Frank van Borselen (c1396-1470, #1564) S.Sint-Martinsdijk & Zuylen &c., who became C.Ostrevant on his marriage in 1434 to Jacoba van Beijeren (d.1436), former Gfn.Holland-Hainault-Zeeland, and his prisoner, when he was Statthalter in Holland 1430.

8. Kings and imaginary arms

Part One of the present armorial is in essence typical of the idolisation common to much of the writings from the late Middle Ages. The most explicit examples are of course the romantic poems, chronicles and didactic works on chivalric virtues and behaviour. But it intrudes even into several of the period armorials.²⁴ This part of the manuscript is probably a contemporary fragment which was co-bound with Part Two, the Gorrevod proper, but it may well have followed the other fragments (i.e. quires) from early on. Quire II, which is in practice the whole part, was written (by another scribe, hand B) as one 'essay', though the author at one time decided to scrap the lines written on the second leaf (fo.10) of the sheet and put this part of the treatise of tinctures on the present fo.4r. In the treatise Christine de Pisan (1364-c.1430) adds symbolism to the metals and colours - as did also the author of the Le blazon de couleurs.²⁵ Hand B then added a long and unfinished list of the arms borne by 18 kings, and 107 dukes and counts (segment 02), and those of the 'Douze pairs de ²⁴ See Clemmensen EA 1:146-147 (URF), 176-178 (GEL), 242-253 (GRU), 287-308 (in general) and Anrooj DG and GC for the writings of Gelre Herald.

²⁵ Usually ascribed to Jean Courtois Sicile Herald; published in Paris 1860 by Hippolyte Cocheris, but see Hiltmann TH for an alternative view.

France' (segment 03) - a remaking of the hero-companions of Charlemagne, now supporting the glory of the Valois kings of France.²⁶

The 'kings' part (segment 02) has all the common western realms with the correct arms (or with minor variations). This subsegment includes three imaginary arms: the 'latin' emperor of Constantinople (#8) with an unusual modification of the standard arms, the mythical king of India (Prester John, #23) with a coat of arms common to French armorials, and one for Ireland (#24) with arms more often attributed to the Trojan hero Hector.²⁷ The dukes and counts are predominantly French.

Part Two has three short segments of realms and (a few) imaginary arms. Two of these (09, #405-414; 11, #439-450) are in quire VI on two different sheets and with different layouts. Segment 09 has Prester John and real kingdoms, while segment 11 has five real and seven imaginary kingdoms. The third 'kings' segment (31, #1063-1074) leads the curious 3-leaf quire XV with the Three Magi, wise men who visited Bethlehem on the birth of Christ. Their names and arms are often transposed. The current selection is similar to that in the Gelre armorial. It has three realms as essentially correct and six with imaginary attributions like those in the Richental (KCR) armorial. Both Prester John and several real kingdoms are doubled in these segments.

9. Summary

Contrary to the proposal of Christine van den Bergen-Pantens, the present evaluation found little evidence that the Gorrevod was planned and executed as a volume of equal (10-leaf) quires, of which many have been lost. It is more likely that the compiler added his observations together with extracts from various sources periodically on sheets folded into quires of uneven size. The drawing style and principal hand are common to both the GOR and the GLS fragment, which may have belonged to the same compilation before its binding. The paper sheets used come from various sources and the batches probably produced over several years. With the relatively coarse analysis of the individual items it not possible to determine the actual periods of work on the various quires, but as several segments were painted on more than one quire, it is probable that the present order is close to that of the execution; and that the work was carried out between 1435 and 1460.

The faded writing may have increased the confounding of names, but some of the mistakes appear to mimic those made when reading an already hard-to-read source. On the other hand, the compiler-artist made few obvious mistakes in his rendering of the arms and crest. Getting the latter not just right, but getting crest at all is no mean feat. The main value of the manuscript is probably that it presents those people (more low than high) that did run Brabant during its few decades as part of 'Greater Burgundy'. It is a pity that the extensive prosopographical research by Christine van den Bergen-Pantens was never published. It will take a keen knowledge of local archival sources to extract full value from this late medieval historical document.

My thanks goes to Klaas Padberg-Evenboer, Christiane van den Bergen-Pantens and Emmanuel de Boos (†) for all the input and inspiration in making the entries in this armorial available to researchers. It is a pity that Christiane was not able to finish it in a form suitable for publishing.

3r Treatise on colours ascribed to Christiane de Pisan (1364-c.1430)

transcribed by Emmanuel de Boos

Cy commence le livre d'armaisies et les propretais qui sont ordonnees pour armerez les nobles homes.

Et preminerement

La couleur d'or, selon nature se tiennent les maistres, est la plus noble et la raison est pour ce que l'or en sa nature est cler et luisant, vertueux et reconfortant, et est le tel que les maistres de phisique le donnent pour souveraen (?) remede et reconfort a home debilité pres de la mort et aultres usages. Et avec ce represente le soleil qui est la plus noble lumière qui soit, et dit la loy 8 que chouse n'est plus belle que clarté et ceste exzellante dit la scripture que la bonne et la sainte personne ressemble à l'or et au soulait. Et anssi quant le filz de Dieu se transfigura devant ses apoustres sur le mont de Tabor, il saparut luisant comme soleil en couleur doré. Et pour ce que l'or est comparé en sa propriecté a pluseurs chouses ordonnorant les anciens lors que nul ne portaist d'or s'il n'estoit chevalier. Et pour ce ce dit la plus noble couleurs et est comparee à une fine pierre precieuse que on apelle toupasse et en vertus se dit noblesse.

La secunde couleur est vermeil que on dit en armoirie guelles qui represente le feu. Car c'este la plus luisante en soy mesmez apres le soulail, et la plus noble de tous le quatre elemens pour la quelle noblesse samblablement ordonnerent les loyz que nul ne portaist guelles (f° 3v) qui signifie caiauste [loyauté ?] fors seulement les nobles. Et celle couleur est comparee a une fine pierre que on apelle rjbers et en vertus se dit hardiesse.

La Tierce couleur est asur laqueil represente l'air et le ciel tout ensemble qui apres le feu et la plus des a la meris ; car il est de luy mesme le plus soutif penetrans et abille a recevoir les influences lumineuses sans laquelle creature ne peut vivre et est de couleur a saffir qui est une de tresfinne pierre et en vertus se dit loyaulteis.

La quarte couleur est de blanc que l'on dit en armoirie argent la quelle par sa figure represente l'eaue qui est apres l'air 4 les plus nobles des elemens et est dit en armoirie argent car il est la plus prochain. Et avec ce le blanc ce signifie purté et ignorance et dit la scripture que les vestemens de Nostre Signeur quant il se demonstra à ses apoustres estoit blains. Et ceste couleur de blanc est comparee à perle fine et en vertus se dit richesse.

La quinte couleur est noire que on dit en armoirie sable et represente la terre qui signifie douleur et tristee (f° 4) car elle est la plus loing de clarté que nul des autres elemens ; et pouchuy fuirent toueis (?) noires abies en signe de doulour a gens qui font le duelle qui s'est la plus basse et plus humble couleur qui soit. Et cest couleur est comparee a dyament qui est une trafine pierre et en vertus se dit humilitest.

La VIme couleur est vert que on dit en armoyrie sinoble qui signifie preis, camps, boys, verdie. Et aucuns veulent dire que c'est la maine noble pourche que elle est trope loing des elemens et est comparee a leasse qui est cose tost pasee et est comparee a une pierre fine qui est qui est nommee esmeraude et en vertus se dit joyeuse.

De ces VI couleurs on en fait une et meslelen tout ensemble et est la septiesme couleur d'armoyisie qui est nommee poupre dont acuns la tiennent pour couleur et aucuns non. Et autres disent que c'est la plus noble pourchuy qu'elle tient de toutes les couleur et ancienement la volorent vestir les enpereurs et les roys quant il tenoient estat imperial ou royaul. Et ausi en vestirent les juifz Jhesus Crist quant il l'apelloient roys des juifz pour ce qu'il avoient costume que les roys se vestorent de tais draps. Et encort se doivent faire quant il doivent leur estat inperial pour la plu noble couleur qui comprennent toutes les autres. Et est comparee a une tresfine pierre que on apelle masticle et en vertus veult dire habundance de biens.

_DE

Arms of the Order of Cistercians (O.S.C.). Founded 1098 by St.Robert of Cisteaux, as used by the german and eastern european branches. In this form, with a crest, it must have been intended for St.Bernhard of Clairvaux (1090-1153), an early general of the Order and reformator of monastic rules.

Hase von Waldeck al. Zajic z Valdeke or Hase von Hasenburg. The family held the office of hereditary grand seneschals in Bohemia. Wilhelm acquired Burg Hasenburg al. Hazmburk nr Slan on Eger, (Kr. Leitmeritz), and changed his name to Hase von Hasenburg and his arms from the simple boar's head to the present. The hare, zajic in czech, might also be drawn as a talbot.
Bergen-Pantens GD 822 is probably wrong in having the brabantian ducal minstrel Pierre den Haze as the person with these arms assigned (wrongfully?). A member of the Zajic family may have served Wencelas of Luxembourg and stayed or have left descendants.

 Caspar / Gaspard of Arabia or of Tharsia / Tarsus & Egrosilla or from Ethiopia, died in Armenia on January 11 in 54 at the age of 109. With Balthazar [192, P721] and Melchior [193/P722] the three magi and astrologers, who travelled to Bethlehem to adore the newborn Jesus. The feast of the 'three holy kings' on Twelfth Night, when Balthazar died at the age of 112 in the year 54, is the traditional end of the Christmas festivities. They were especially worshipped in Köln, to where their remains were transferred from Milano by emperor Friederich Barbarossa in 1164. Their bones were 'discovered' by Helena, mother of emperor Constantin the Great around 325 and placed first in the Hagia Sophia in Constantinople, then transferred to Milano by St.Eustorgius. The legend has that they gave their wealth to the poor and travelled preaching the Gospel, but were only baptised around year 40 by St.Thomas in India. Their three crowns are placed in the chief of the arms of Reichstadt Köln [1145]. Due to copying mistakes their arms are variously attributed to either of the three. Gaspard has different arms in [P720], see also the introduction.

Jean (V) de Gavre, d.1486, whom <1456 married Marie Schönau-Schoonvorst Dm.Heetvelde & Elsloe. She inherited her sister as Dm.Elsloe in 1435. They tested in 1473.
The arms, attributed to the carolingian hero Roland, were adopted <1297 by an earlier Jean de Gavre.
As noted for #1098 the page is divided with a red vertical line, each with 4 arms - central arms - 4 arms, a layout which would typically indicate 8 ancestors of each (#1098-115). However only 3 of the 4 above the married pair have any relation to them.

 Antoine dit 'le grand bâtard de Bourgogne', 1421-1504, natural son of Philippe 'bon' D.Bourgogne. He was a famous jouter, and changed his arms 1453 to that of Corneille (d.1452), also known as 'grand bâtard';
 His proper arms, with a bend Gu, replaced by those of duke Philippe. Antoine used {Ar bend with arms of Philippe 'le bon'} 1446-52 (CHA:90).

Appendix B: Gorrevod (GOR), Brx, KBR, II.6563 - structure

Paper, 121 leaves in 21 quires, 225 x 155 mm; facsimile with 2 pages per frame (verso, recto).

1627 painted or blazoned arms, many with crested helmets, in various layouts.

Ex-libris, a treatise on tinctures ascribed to Christiane de Pisan, and a list of Trojan heroes are unnumbered.

Un-numbered elements:

- inside front cover: arms & crest of de Grez; "de Grez"; "Melchior de Grez";
- flyleaf, front, secured on back of binding: arms & crest of de Grez; "de Grez 1692";
- flyleaf, backside: glued on, unidentified printed (b/w) cut-out arms: 2 bars acc. bend ch. 3 escutcheons {3 pales}; 3 fleurs-de-lis & canton {3 pales enhanced}; =; = :E: 3 pales & chief ch. saltire engrailed; and crest: escutcheon {3 pales} betw wings; on the backside printed remnants on what appears to be a funeral eulogy; below this a printed notice on the death of Mad^e, widow of commissaire de guerre Halewyck, died 21.11.1737.

Rietstap (p.875, Rolland 2:137n48) has the Halewyck arms as Az 2 chevrons Or acc. grillet Or in base.

- fo.1r (fr.7b-9): unfinished and damaged painted exlibris arms of 'Carolous Gorrevod' glued over the remains of a cut-out shield of Gules lion argent glued on to the page. Below is written, barely legible "duque de pondévay". The blue and yellow parts of the arms are left uncoloured. The grandquarters are those of Bourgogne qtg unidentified, i.e. for Isabelle (d.1650), the wife of Charles Emmanuel de Gorrevod (d.1625) D.Pont-de-Vaux.

Q1+4: Bourgogne-Valois, Bourgogne-Capet imp Brabant, Bourgogne-Capet imp. Limbourg, inescutcheon of Flanders (i.e. arms of Philippe 'le bon'); Q2+3: Gu arm Ar holding sword Ar erect issit cloud sn Ar qtg Ar lion cr. Gu; Escutch: indistinct, but possibly Portugal qtg Gu illegible Ar.

Rietstap (p.802; Rolland 3:70n48-51) gives the arms of Gorrevod as Az chevron Or, and two quartered arms, one with Q2-3: Barry Ar-Gu & bend Az ch. 3 fleurs-de-lis Or, an argumentation of France; the other with Q1+4: qtg Az fess undy Ar & cheif Gu ch. mullet Ar, and Q2-3: as Bourgogne (Philip le bon) above.

Rietstap (Rolland 1:291, 2:301) has her parental arms, Bourgogne C.Fallais as: Bourgogne (above) qtg Or lion cr. Gu & border Sa.

- fo.2r (fr.11b): target-type shield with arms Gu 3 lions Or acc. escutch {Or 3 saltires gules} - not identified.

- 2n (11r, fr.20b-21): painted exlibris of Cotthem glued on to mostly illegible sketches and drafts, incl. the Crosier of Basel; "woutert van kottheem", "G III", Gu 3 bends Ar & canton {pily-barry Ar-Gu} & escutch {illegible uncoloured draft}, tilting helmet, crest: pair of wings erect ch. Gu 3 bends Ar between 2 bull's horns Ar 2 (broad) bars Sa.

- between 31n/32n (fr.36-37): a small fragment attached to the quire; on the recto 2 unnumbered items (one large, and on sn a smaller with same arms, but different crest, Winghe), on the verso is a further unnumbered item (Rode) glued on.

-: ".. van winghe" and "h wouter vâ winghe"; Ar 3 mascles Sa & chief Or ch. pales Gu; the larger crest is: a boar Sa on a cap of maintenance, the smaller is: a bearded man's head Sa with donkey's ears Ar (Midas' head) on a torse.

Wouter dit van Winghene, fl.1374-1425, younger son of Heinrich (VII) van Boutersem, d.1371, who in 1352 married Maria Westmael Dm.Bergen-op-Zoom & Merksem. XRA 4:258 has the seals (1421, 1424, Jean, receveur général du Brabant, crest: boar) and (1424, Lambert, idem).

-: on backside: "<wouter van rode>"; Or 3 pales Az & chief Gu ch. 2 lions passt affronted Ar; crest: a peacock plume betw 2 wings.

XRA 3:245n11 has the 1374 seal of Jean van Roede, captured at Basweiler.

- p.220: arms (barry Gu-Ar qtg Ar lion Gu) and crest of de Grez; "Marc de buffle", "De Drez 1409" - covered by p.219 glued on;
